Quebec Disaster

Slide Kills Three, Evacuates 2,000

NICOLET, Que. (CP)—A huge landslide on the Nicolet river Saturday claimed the lives of at least three persons, forced the evacuation of some 2,000 men, women and children from their Nicolet homes and caused damage estimated at more than $5,000,000.

There was danger of further landslides and Chief Edouard Beaulac of the Nicolet police department declared a state of emergency.

A huge mass of earth that formed part of a high bank of the river, slid suddenly shortly before noon, taking with it the archbishop's palace, an academy, two homes and other property.

The 150-year-old St. Jean Baptiste cathedral, adjacent to the archbishop's palace, was still standing but at a dangerous angle and to this town of 5,000 within a year, Roman Catholic church officials said it could never be occupied again. A new cathedral would be built.

So far the bodies of a six-month-old boy, a 60-year-old woman and a member of a religious order have been recovered. It was feared the slide also claimed the lives of several occupants of an automobile.

Search for the possible victims was halted because of the danger to the lives of the earth shifting again and of fallen electric wires.

At least six persons were taken to hospital suffering from various injuries, none believed severe, and shock. Some 25 were left homeless.

It was the second major mishap but at a dangerous angle and to this town of 5,000 within a year, Roman Catholic church officials said it suffered heavily in a fire some said it could never be occupied months ago.

Victoria Hardest Hit Of All Island Centres

Temperature records only a day old were expected to topple today as the surprise cold snap which brought four inches of snow to Victoria Friday showed no signs of coming to an end.

The weather office, still totting up records set by the low temperature of 12.5 degrees at 7 a.m. yesterday, looked for a minimum of 12 degrees or less this morning and a maximum of only 20 later in the day.

Single chance for a break in the freeze was the slim possibility that a low-pressure area from the Gulf of Alaska would cross the southern Island to-night or tomorrow. At best, weatherman William Mackie predicted only "a slight moderation."

Victoria appeared to be hardest hit of all Island centres, with only a few snow flurries reported north of Nanaimo. Winds which reached 75 miles an hour in Sidney were called the "worst in 20 years."

Winds Vicious

Worst damage was a $75,000 fire at Mtn Bay. Winds at Sidney caused destruction of the $7,500 launch Silhouette, owned by an unidentified Victoria man, a 36-foot gillnetter owned by Indians and a small pleasure craft owned by Robert MacDonald of Victoria.

A change in circulation of air high above B.C. brought the snow and cold to Victoria 10 hours early, the weatherman said. "We're not making any excuses, it just got here early."

Snow pellets fell at 1 a.m. Friday, but temperature was still 32 degrees at 9.30 a.m. It fell to 24 by 1.30 p.m., then slid one degree an hour until it reached 15 at 9.30 p.m. Reading dropped slowly to 12.5 between 4.30 and 7 a.m. yesterday, and never got above 20 all day.

Unofficial readings by Greater Victoria residents in different areas placed temperatures even lower than those recorded by weather office instruments.

A low of two degrees was reported yesterday at Prospect Lake and eight at Happy Valley.

Previous official low for this month was 14.2 degrees, Nov. 11, 1911.

Four inches of snow, most of which fell between 10.30 a.m. and 6 p.m., Friday, was less than the one-day November mark of 8.5 inches, Nov. 13, 1937.

Heaviest snowfall apparently was in Sidney, where depth was as much as eight inches.

Hundreds of cars stalled or skidded into ditches along local highways despite efforts of sanding crews. B.C. Electric officials said "the snow played hob for a while with transit schedules" and forced replacement of two stalled buses.

All main streets were being sanded by 12 city workers in four trucks, who worked 21 hours during the first two days of the cold snap. The Matsnat was sanded, but RCMP said last night "it's still not good."

Some veteran political observers said Lonardi had a chance of surviving the crisis and warned not to count him out too early.

A consultative junta was reported to have drafted an ultimatum giving Lonardi the choice of "democratizing" the government with basic changes in key positions or resigning.

Lonardi's second Cabinet shuffle in two days—dropping attorney Eduardo Basso as minister of interior and justice—was reported to have sparked a string of resignations in the Cabinet, the Supreme Court and many lower courts Saturday.

Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu, the army's chief of staff, appeared as a rising figure in talks about a new government. A square-jawed career officer of 52, Aramburu sped from conferences at the big army base of Campo de Mayo to Government House on an unannounced mission. He wielded a strong influence in the army.

Rojas, as vice-president, conducted the crisis and warned not to count him out too early.

Faces Crisis

EDUARDO LONARDI

Space Lures Prince

LONDON (CP)—Prince Charles, who celebrates his seventh birthday Monday, has decided to be a spaceman when he grows up.

Palace circles said the heir to the British throne gave first place to a spaceman's suit on his birthday list of requests which he handed to the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh last week.

A cricket set was mentioned and some Donald Duck movies but it was obvious from the giant letters in which "space-man's suit" was spelled out that it was a fling into outer space which tempts young Charles most.

Government Tottering

Dissension Splits Anti-Peron Group

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Argentine government of provisional President, Eduardo Lonardi appeared to be on the brink of failure early Sunday.

A split among the men who threw out the Peron dictatorship less than two months ago led to a government crisis and emergency conferences among military leaders.

President Lonardi was reported at the 1st infantry regiment headquarters but his status was unclear.

Rear Adm. Isaac Rojas, a hero of the rebellion against the ousted President Juan D. Peron, scurried between civil and military conferences as tension increased overnight.

Some veteran political observers said Lonardi had a chance of surviving the crisis and warned not to count him out too early.

Record Salvage Tow Started by City Tug

The salvage tug Sudbury started on its long 3,200-mile return trip to Vancouver last night with the disabled Greek freighter Makedonia in tow.

Capt. Harley Blagborne of Sudbury radioed Island Tug & Barge that a tow line was secured at 8 p.m. (Victoria time) to the 7,200-ton vessel which was sailing from Japan to Vancouver when a broken tail shaft left it powerless on a storm-tossed north Pacific ocean since Oct. 30.

After plowing through heavy seas for 12 days, the tug reached the stricken vessel early yesterday at a point about 700 miles southwest of the eastern tip of the Aleutian Islands.

The salvage tow, perhaps the longest on record, is expected to take between 25 and 30 days to reach the Canadian west coast. Island Tug officials said the speed of the Sudbury will depend largely on weather conditions in the area, which is usually the scene of a succession of storms during the winter.

Also unknown was the amount of ballast carried in the hold of the Makedonia, which would also affect the towing speed.

Sudbury, which is a converted corvette and now one of the largest sea-going tugs on the Pacific coast, was dispatched to the rescue of the Greek ship Oct. 31 from Nootka sound, when the tug had barges in tow from Prince Rupert.

Two lieutenant-generals, 93 lieutenant-colonels, majors and lieutenants, one sergeant-major and five master sergeants gave the pledge.

Only a few had time to get themselves fitted with the mouse-grey uniform of the new army. They were put prominently in front of the somewhat disorderly ranks.

Bunting and a huge iron cross, symbol of old-fashioned German militarism, constituted the only decorations for the ceremony, which took place the day after her enemies in two great wars paid annual respects to their fallen soldiers.

LI-Generals Adolf Heusinger and Hans Speidel were the senior officers.

Defence Minister Blank, in a brief speech, expressed the emphasis which the government is putting on making the army a democratic one.

Iron Cross Displayed

New German Army Born Without Fanfare

BONN, Germany (UP)—West Germany's new army was born yesterday in a shabby garage behind the defence ministry.

Defence Minister Theodor Blank administered an oath of loyalty to the first 101 men of what is to become a 500,000-man Streitkräfte—fighting force.

Two lieutenant-generals, 93 lieutenant-colonels, majors and lieutenants, one sergeant-major and five master sergeants gave the pledge.

City Fishboat Missing After Storm

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two fish boats have been reported missing in B.C. coastal waters as an aftermath of gales that lashed the area Thursday and Friday.

An RCAF Canso aircraft is searching for the fishboat Kenneth, which left Victoria Wednesday to fish off Sechart in the Georgia strait, and another boat reported to have been in Howe Sound, near Williams landing, Friday night.

It is not known how many were aboard the two craft.

Herbert Norris, 72, 737 Vancouver, suffered some frozen fingers and a dislocated left shoulder when he fell in Pioneer Square, Mrs. J. S. Adams broke an ankle in a fall on ice beside walk near her home at 2510 Richmond.

All police forces were kept hopping by minor accidents. Motorists got some breaks—Boy Scouts pushed stalled cars on the Patricia Bay highway in the midst of the snow storm.

Anti-freeze and fuel were still in good supply despite panic buying by thousands of Victorians.

Half of the 200 service stations in the area were open, although only 12 normally operate on holidays, selling anti-freeze. Motorists lined up at many places and one service station had 500 customers, between 7.30 a.m. Friday and 2 a.m. yesterday.

Temperature extremes forecast for Nanaimo today were 10 and 20 degrees.

No snow fell between Nanaimo and the Alberni, although the area was subjected to below-freezing temperatures and icy winds.

Wants Compensation...

Nelson Expects England To Do Her Duty

LONDON (NANA)—Earl Nelson, 63-year-old, great-grandnephew of Lord Nelson, Britain's greatest naval hero, will claim $500,000 compensation from the British Government for the loss of the family's $15,000-a-year perpetual state pension.

"I am not interested in the money," Lord Nelson declared in an interview. "I want to wipe out the slur that was cast on my family by the arbitrary withdrawal of the pension."

"If the government can pay compensation to an industry when it is nationalized, they can equally pay compensation to a national hero when his family pension is withdrawn."

"I feel the decision to end the pension was a spiteful gesture by men who felt no pride in our heroic heritage."

Lord Nelson said he had prepared a full memorandum on the subject, "The Duke of Wellington's heirs received more than $500,000 when his pension was ended," he pointed out. "I know I will have substantial support in parliament if I enter a private bill to right the injustice."

"The original act granting the pension forever laid it down that the grant could not be varied by any monarch or his ministers."

Third World War Now Step Closer Says Israel Official

VANCOUVER (CP)—Yehuda Gaulan, Israeli consul-general, said here Saturday the possibility of a full scale Israeli-Egyptian war has increased dangerously with the shipment to Egypt of Russian-built jet planes, tanks and submarines by Czechoslovakia.

By being anti-Israeli, the military junta killed two birds at once.

the Egyptian people from their own internal difficulties and General Nasser gained popularity in the eyes of the Arab world.

GENEVA (AP)—The United States and Britain Saturday won French agreement for swift and vigorous Western action against any state that starts a new war in the Middle East.

Informal sources said France accepted American and British proposals for putting teeth into the three countries' 1950 pledge to guard the peace of the Middle East.

The proposals envisage the possible imposition of diplomatic, economic and certain military sanctions, backed if necessary by air and naval blockading action, against an aggressor.

PARIS (UP)—The government announced yesterday it will resume arms deliveries to Egypt because Cairo radio has eased its attacks against France and North Africa "is returning to normal."

A spokesman for the foreign ministry said France will "fulfill the contracts of arms delivery to Egypt which was stopped last summer."

Pilot Gets Shock

SOUTHEAST, England (AP)—Pioneer pilot Clyde Pangborn heard with surprise Saturday night that a plane he is flying from South Africa to Kansas City had been the object of a day-long air, land and sea search from the French Alps to the Mediterranean. Co-pilot Jack Wade of Kansas City and three other persons are with him.

The first man to fly non-stop across the Pacific, Pangborn brought his modern twin-engine craft into Southeast's airport and then drove to a London hotel for an overnight stay. He planned to head on Sunday.

His Lockheed Lodestar No. 699 had been reported missing out of Naples, Italy, on a hop to Nice, France. Boats and planes searched the area around Nice and land parties looked for the craft in the Alps. The search was given up at night-fall.

But Pangborn had come down at Southeast eight hours earlier. Reached at his hotel Saturday night, Pangborn said of the search:

"This is the first I have heard of it. We had a flight plan for Nice, but because we got off late from Cyprus we stopped at Naples and then flew directly to Paris. We stopped there for the night."

Meat Sweeter Nearer Home

YARMOUTH, Me. (AP)—Raymond B. Durgin and several friends travelled by auto and plane to Fort Kent—round trip 500 miles—in an unsuccessful deer hunt. No one got even a shot. Monday morning, Durgin's brother, Arthur, 18, awakened him to tell him he had just shot a 200-pound buck—200 yards from their door.

Most of us throw every safeguard possible around our property. Homes, automobiles, and valuable personal property are carefully insured against losses by fire, theft, and storm. We insure our lives to protect the economic well-being of our dependents.

While a cold wind numbed the hands and face and a snowfall left a mantle of white on the head and shoulders, IODE standard-bearer Mrs. A. W. E. Pitkethley, like more than 2,700 who attended city Remembrance Day cenotaph ceremonies, paid silent tribute to Canada's war dead.

Molotov, Dulles Meet Today

Disarmament Reverted to UN As Big Four Fail To Agree

GENEVA, Switzerland (UP)—The Big Four foreign ministers Saturday abandoned all attempts to reach agreement on disarmament at their present meeting.

They decided to instruct their experts to work out, before the conference ends next Wednesday, an agreement to turn the whole disarmament issue back to the United Nations in New York.

After days of hot words, the delegates softened their tone and agreed that negotiations should continue in the UN.

Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov, in a new move, arranged to confer privately with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles at 10 a.m. today.

At their next meeting on Monday, the foreign ministers will turn to the question of intensifying friendly contacts between East and West.

Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French acting chief delegate Roland de Margerie met Saturday to discuss non-conference issues.

These included the Palestine crisis, the Far East and admission of new members to the UN.

The relaxed tone of the foreign ministers was shown when Dulles said:

"I feel confident that even if we did not reach a large measure of formalized agreement on disarmament, certainly the exchange of viewpoints which occurred here has been instructive and will help our representatives in the UN."

Veterans Cheer Troops

Thousands Ignore Cold To Pay Homage

Winter's first blast of icy winds stung the faces of more than 4,000 civilians, veterans and service personnel who gathered at snow-covered war memorials in the area Friday to pay tribute to Canada's war dead.

The largest Remembrance Day service, at the cenotaph on the legislative buildings lawn, ended with a heavy round of applause for veterans too.

uniformed servicemen who participated in the ceremony and the four-service cenotaph sentries who braved the wind and snow without greatcoats.

At the Esquimalt ceremony, forces were dismissed and the march-past was cancelled by Capt. D. M. Groos, commander of HMCS Ontario, who was to take the salute. It was acclaimed "a good gesture" by frozen officials who had stood nearly an hour with 1,000 spectators in the driving snow.

Red faces and hands also marked shorter services at Oak Bay and at the Langford Legion hall.

At Victoria's cenotaph, Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross took the salute in the march-past ceremony, his head and the shoulders of his cutaway coat heaped with snow. He was flanked by Rear-Admiral Hugh F. Pullen and Col. R. B. Longridge, Legion zone commander.

YOUR WILL

You wouldn't buy a piece of property without having the title searched and the documents safely drawn by your lawyer—would you?

Then how illogical it is to rely on a "home-made" Will—to dispose of assets worth many thousands of dollars.

If your wishes are to be carried out without slip-up, your Will must be explicitly phrased—open to no misinterpretation. Your own lawyer is the proper person to do this. His advice is of inestimable value.

In the planning of your Will, we at National Trust can also be of help. Our Trust Officers are thoroughly experienced in all phases of administering estates. We will be glad to discuss this important subject with you and your lawyer.

We invite you to write for free copy of booklet: "Security for Your Family."

Amalgamation in Principle

FEW, if any, individuals in this area have given more serious study to the question of municipal amalgamation than Mr. Forrest L. Shaw. In a recent reference to the subject he touched on two phases of the issue which, while basic, are often misunderstood. One is the coming consequences of larger population. The other is the question of what would be done about the fixed debt of the several municipal components of the Greater Victoria region in the event of union.

In connection with the existing debt obligations of Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt, Mr. Shaw has every warrant for stating that these could remain separate, and be paid off eventually by each area concerned. That has been standard practice in municipal unions throughout Canada. New debt and regional issues are then handled on the credit of the amalgamated district, so that no one area can take advantage over another. On exactly the same principle most municipalities now segregate their departmental obligations, if only for purposes of cost-account bookkeeping. Municipal fixed debts would remain under provincial supervision, as a further guarantee.

It is on the first point—the eventual inevitability of civic union in the Greater Victoria region under ever-mounting pressure of new settlement—that considerably more understanding would be desirable in some of the municipalities concerned. The simplest extension of the economic, sociological and even the mechanical developments of today indicates that provision will have to be made for a community of close to quarter of a million people here. Today's physical plant, today's housing, today's roads will not be adequate. Waterworks, policing, fire protection, health, parks, library circulation and almost every service that one can think of would be stretched beyond its maximum possible capacity under the present set-up.

Right there one logical question asserts itself: can these four municipalities afford to multiply their existing services by quadruplicated effort, or will they do that once?

Provision for a new housing development designed to provide 2,000 family dwellings; prospective entry of departmental and chain stores into regional markets; the action of the provincial government in expanding the arterial roads and other outlets in the joint community; and the steady influx of ever more people, are evidences of growth which cannot be denied.

Until recently the four municipalities, beginning in a small way, have run their own shows more or less on the basis of local contingency. When fundamentals like space, water and essential civic services run short, however, what is to happen? Only forethought and wise management can provide the answer, and it will need to be a highly co-ordinated one.

Downtown Loading Problems

DURING a recent traffic case in the city police court a moving firm brought to the attention of the magistrate some of the difficulties which the traffic regulations create in connection with the loading and unloading of large trucks in downtown Victoria. Most of these can be traced to the poor lay-out of the commercial section of the city. The almost complete absence of alleys or yards in the older blocks leaves trucks in many instances with no alternative but to load and unload at the curbside.

While the truckers' difficulties have to be conceded, some are of their own creation. The trend towards bigger and bigger trucks or tractor-trailer combinations has seriously aggravated the situation. Few of the streets can accommodate stationary multi-axle vehicles without disrupting traffic, and short of demolishing the business section and starting afresh there is little that can be done to improve the loading facilities.

Finding a remedy may devolve largely on the moving contractors themselves.

One obvious solution for the authorities is to bar trucks beyond a certain maximum size and wheelbase length from entering the heart of the city. That has had to be done in many North American cities, and eventually too may be found necessary in Victoria. If heavy freight haulers want the economical operation of units as big as railway freight cars ultimately they may be required to establish depots of their own outside the congested area, where goods could be broken down and transferred to smaller vehicles for final delivery. That would involve extra handling, adding to the cost of operation; but truckers cannot expect traffic in general to accept disruption to suit their convenience and keep their costs down.

The business of the city must go on and for that reason the truckers, in the absence of proper facilities, are given many concessions officially and unofficially to help smooth the way for them. There are limits, however, to the extent of inconvenience to which the rest of the street traffic, public and private, should be put on that account.

The Governor-Generalship

A QUEBEC paper puts forward the suggestion that Governor-General Massey succeed himself in the vice-regal office, supposing that the next incumbent is to be a Canadian. Speculation may be a little premature since Mr. Massey's term has more than a year to run, although doubtless some high-level thought is being given to the subject even this early. The Quebec paper points rightly to the fact that suitable candidates for the high position may not be too plentiful, especially if the field of choice be circumscribed. The vice-regal office is one that is best served by individuals of special aptitudes and attainments, but not all eligible may care to assume its responsibilities.

In this respect it is probably true that distance lends enchantment to persons as well as to a scene, and the home product is at a disadvantage. A governor-general of known distinction from afar invests his role with a certain glamour of personality that enhances his office. Mr. Massey has been conscientious and diligent in all his duties and has upheld the office with appropriate dignity, but without prejudice it could be said that in the west at least the impact of his tenure has been somewhat slight. He will be more intimately appreciated in the east, where he is seen often and has become familiar, but he has lacked some of the color that would imprint his influence on a national scale. It would be no credit to them, nevertheless, some people in this area might be hard put to it to name the present governor-general.

What the government may have in mind in connection with the governor-generalship one must wait and see. If it decides to continue the practice of appointing a Canadian to the vice-regal office that will be no cause for dissent. If however it feels like resuming the former custom there are one or two distinguished figures in other Commonwealth lands who would make apt governors-general. One is difficult about suggesting it for it scarcely seems attainable, but the most felicitous Rideau Hall incumbent of all would, of course, be Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother, who would grace the office with a stature immensely to the advantage of Canada and of the whole Commonwealth.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE frank avowal of Fleet Admiral Halsey that in battle fear gripped him often should hearten lesser men. "I'll bet there was nobody in the war more scared, more often, and for as long as I was," is the way he put it. And this from the man nicknamed "Bull."

You can't very well psycho-analyze war heroes, but in fact the fearless man, the one who doesn't know what fear is, isn't being half so brave when he does some desperate deed as the man who does it even though his heart is quaking. This doesn't deprecate the honors that come the way of the fearless one, of course, for what an army you'd have if not a single man among them knew what fear was!

France's new resident-general for Morocco is cited as having silenced noisy auto horns in Paris. That is no mean qualification for high office, for even keeping the peace among tribesmen shouldn't be much more difficult than teaching motorists how to behave towards one another. Right here in Victoria sometimes you'd think cars were inhabited by howling Dervishes armed with tin trumpets. If cars had no horns a lot of driving might be less reckless; it certainly would be easier on the ears.

Apocryphal military appearances a friend tells me of standing behind a London Bobby at the funeral procession of a famous field marshal. The "top brass," he says, wore all bigglesy-pigglesy so he asked the policeman what would happen if he shouted out: "Cover off—the Generals." The Bobby smiled and replied: "I would have to arrest you for creating a breach of the peace."

Needless to say my friend thereupon closed his eyes to the general's disorder.

A picture noted the other day of a bull elk lured within rifle range by the mating call of a hunter's bugle does nothing to enhance the human kind. The elk hasn't a rifle with which to give combat, and the deception seems unfair.

From Time magazine, apropos the appearance of the Scots Guards bands in Madison Square Garden: "Nobody knows exactly how long ago the bagpipe was invented. In one incarnation it was known in Tuhankhamen's Egypt and Plato's Greece. Its unerring (sic) drones and belligerent skirls have been known to stir men's blood, their brains and, according to Shakespeare, their bladders."

How come, do you suppose, that Shakespeare knew anything about the bagpipe? This Stratford fellow seems to have had a built-in radar system all his particular own. Nothing escaped him.

I heard a local yachtsman speak on the beneficial aspects of sailing; incidentally he made a nice point when he said you don't really appreciate the beauties of this area until you view them from its marine perspective. I daresay yachtsmen have one other advantage; they don't have to worry about yacht models being changed every year. Unlike cars and a hundred other things, sailboats bought today will still be in fashion ten, twenty years hence. At least at sea yachtsmen can ignore the fashions about keeping up with the Joneses.

A reader sends me autographed copies of some verse by Canon F. G. Scott, the famous and beloved padre of the First World War, for which my thanks.

The following lines would enrich your scrapbook:

"CEASE FIRE"
Over the broken dead,
Over the trenches and wire,
Bugles of God rang out—
"Cease Fire."
Woe to those nations of men
Who, in their heat or desire,
Break that stern order of God—
"Cease Fire."

Moral Values Re-Assessed

By RICHARD L. THOMAS,

Daily Colonist Correspondent

SOMETHING has happened to Britain in the aftermath of Princess Margaret's announcement. It is difficult to write of it without being accused of smug hypocrisy on the one hand and exaggerated virtue on the other.

One is conscious that there is a greater unanimity concerning the decision than there would have been had it been made the other way. The great majority of those people who regard conventions outmoded and church teaching elastic have paused to think and ponder the implications. It may do a whole world of good.

The Crown, tarnished a little by the irresponsibility which has gone with the cascading gossip of these last weeks, has emerged brighter than it has ever been and the Queen herself has obviously been deeply moved by first the dignity and then the loyalty of her younger sister. It is not easy to be dignified in a world of tawdry illusion and Margaret was always dignified.

Perhaps most of all Margaret has given the nation a leadership in spiritual values which has been sadly lacking. The average Briton, steeped in the spirit of traditional compromise, resents inflexibility, golden rules and domination, but it would be foolish to say that he does not admire the qualities he pretends to resent. It is part of the complex paradox of British character which foreigners can never understand.

The climate of British morality has undergone a startling change since the beginning of the century. Offences against the moral code were punished by the social code as effectively as offences against the law were punished by the courts. We would argue academically whether social ostracism was a fair penalty for an injured wife or husband, but we accepted the social punishment rather than we do legal punishment—not only for its effect on the person convicted but its effect as a deterrent to others who may have similar inclinations. Just as we argue academically whether it is just that a man who steals food for his family should go to prison—and possibly criticize a particular magistrate or judge for his administration of the law—we do not quarrel with the law that makes theft an offence.

What has been happening recently in the moral sphere is that we have been quarrelling with the law rather than the penalty. We have been pretending that the moral code does not matter and proceed to quote hard cases to support our view. We have assessed our standards from the personal point of view, personal convenience and our own comfort and forgetting its value as a deterrent. If anyone is inclined to dismiss that comment as hypocritical guff it is worth noting that since newspapers have been permitted to print only the judge's summing up and verdict in divorce cases the divorce rate has increased six times.

It is unlikely that if the restraint imposed by publicity was important, the restraint imposed by a rigid social code was not wholly ineffectual. There is little doubt that the rigid enforcement of the political code—that cabinet ministers could not be divorced or involved in a divorce—created a higher standard amongst political aspirants than is encouraged today when the prime minister, some of his colleagues, and even judges have attained and retained office despite breaches of the moral law. And in this connection it is surely debatable whether there is such a person as an innocent party? For a very long time it was unheard of for a gentleman to accuse his wife of infidelity. It may have been hypocrisy but it was also chivalry—the sort of chivalry which women have not been known to show in more recent times.

There is no easy answer and no simple answer. Princess Margaret has underlined that fact if she has done nothing else.

In a spirit of commendable courage and superb dignity, that at least there may be something in the moral law which may be worthy of consideration. Even her most ardent admirers, those who urged personal considerations above all others, those who believe honestly and sincerely that there is something radically wrong with the moral law, have been forced to reconsider their attitude. It is as though, enjoying ourselves on a rapid descent of the slippery dip, we have hit some splinters instead of polished wood. We have stopped for revaluation.

This is what has happened to Britain. Princess Margaret has given a leadership which to many, possibly the majority, is staggering in its implications.

Her decision was not easy. No one underestimates the conflict. Many may not agree with her decision but it is significant that it has brought a fresh, invigorating wind blowing through the country. It has emphasized that there is virtue in sacrifice, and suggested that the easy way may not be the right way. That lesson has not been lost on Britain in this crisis—and a pause for reflection is one of the things too often forgotten.

And now Princess Margaret, always held in affection, is more beloved than ever, for Britons still admire courage even if at the time they regard it as unnecessary.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

THERE is one thing greater than the Victoria Cross, nobler than the Order of Merit, more honorable than the Companion of Honor, and that is the wooden cross, the memory of which we are expected to bear in mind at this time of year.

Close to one hundred thousand Canadians—fathers, sons, brothers and dear friends of this generation—have joined the order of the wooden cross in our time. We have four wars to think upon. There are still the veterans of the Boer War with us, and its widows and orphans. The veterans of the first German war number some hundreds of thousands in our midst, the elders of our business and politics. Mothers of those who accepted the wooden cross in that first war to end wars are still with us by the several thousand, though their grief is so old it might appear to strangers as being a little faded. The second German war and the Korean war are not so recent that most of us who might have attended a service at a cenotaph on Friday or at least remembered to keep a moment's silence at 11 a.m., will think of the boys of these last wars, rather than include the young men who joined the most ancient of all military orders of chivalry 40 years ago.

However heroic an act that wins an award for gallantry or distinguished service, however noble a life dedicated to some service of the nation that gains for it a star or a jewel of honor, they come far down the ranks of precedence after those who not merely offered but gave their lives for their country. Unknown, most of them, save to a circle of family and acquaintances no larger than a crossroads village population; humble and unpretentious, most of them, as if their lives were little to offer—they are the greatest of us all. If we but paused that moment, at 11 a.m., and thought,

From Nine Miles Up

THE air force has just released a photograph taken at an altitude of nine miles, or 47,000 feet, in which a photo analyst located a golf course, and on one green picked out two golf balls.

One of the nation's top photo interpreters, Donald Belcher of the Cornell University airport research centre, makes these observations on his experience with aerial detection: "Photographs from high flying planes have spotted buried villages in Egypt, old fortifications covered with drift sand in Iran, and ancient walls buried beneath the soil and actually covered with wheat fields in England. Buried pipelines only a few inches in diameter cannot be hidden from the camera. Land mines buried in Egypt by Rommel's men 15 years ago are now being located by air photo."

Toast in the Sky

THE 50-ton, 12-motor flying boat Dornier DO-X, Germany's flagship of the air, flew from Amsterdam to Calshot, England, 25 years ago last week.

The "Flying Hotel" covered the 400 miles in four hours with a crew of 15, 21 passengers, a black cat and a canary.

While making ready for a flight across the Atlantic, the world's largest seaplane took off again on a trial trip.

The Prince of Wales had the controls for 10 minutes. "The German officers pronounced him an excellent pilot. While the ship was aloft the Prince toasted the Dornier associates, builders of the DO-X, and wished them success on their projected flight to New York."

The price of gasoline in many Victoria stations dropped 2 cents to 31 cents a gallon. At least one dealer was selling for 30 cents.

William Herbert Warren, a former Victoria man working at Vinland Station, Beamsville, Ontario, was named Victoria parks superintendent.

FIFTY years ago, as today, grown-ups feared that the young generation was going to the devil.

"At a meeting of the (Nanaimo) school board this evening Mayor

Planta referred to the moral depravity of some of the children of Nanaimo, both boys and girls, and it was certainly such that called for most stringent measures to improve.

"There were regular gangs of boys, he said, around the streets at all hours plotting all kinds of mischief, smoking cigarettes and swearing."

Victoria fishermen were angry because the Dominion government had forbidden fishing with nets in Victoria harbor and in Cowichan bay.

Both were places where the fishermen netted small fish for bait.

HERE'S a vignette of colonial Victoria, 95 years ago . . .

About 11 o'clock on Tuesday night, Sergeant Blake, while going his rounds on Yates street, heard a loud cry of distress, apparently coming from the vicinity of Government and Johnson streets.

"He found an unfortunate citizen . . . wallowing in the mud, and hallooing for assistance in heartrending accents—'Save me! Save me!'"

"To release the poor fellow from his predicament was the work of some time, as the mud was about two feet deep—and before the officer could . . . drag him forth from his miry bed, he was almost smothered."

Anthem Chopping Brings Protest

The other evening I made one of my occasional excursions to a movie house and enjoyed a good evening's entertainment. But I left the theatre unamused.

theatre is a "creeping republican" who hopes to get rid of the Queen by degrees and perhaps replace her by a full-length shot of the current movie goddess. It would be

I stood at attention with the other patrons for The Queen. The anthem followed the familiar tune for the first three lines, and then for some reason it stopped.

Why? Did the members of the band run out of wind? Did the conductor suddenly drop dead? Or was the anthem cut in half because it is too tiring for a Canadian audience to stand at attention for more than half a minute, even for a national anthem? Or perhaps the manager of the very interesting to discover the reason for this action.

If for some good reason The Queen cannot be played in its entirety then it would be better to omit it altogether. To lop it off halfway through is an offence to both the rudiments of music and the loyalty of the Canadian people to our Queen. Let us hope, therefore, that this situation will be remedied in the very near future.

Environment a Factor

For once I find myself in disagreement with Dr. Sherman, when she says that mental attitudes cannot be inherited. There is also well-documented evidence to the contrary.

Dr. Cyril Birt in his exhaustive study of juvenile delinquency found that the majority of a vast number of cases showed a recurring set of factors, namely, low I.Q., inherited tendency, and bad environment.

Naturally, the three are sociologically interdependent, but fortunately environment seems to be the controlling factor. So that by changing that the individual may be saved from possible ill effects of the remaining two.

Citizens' Patrol

In regard to the editorial of Nov. 2 about Halloween hoodlums, permit me to suggest a protective citizens' league properly deputized by the local authorities and equipped to patrol your city whenever emergencies occur.

Such citizens could make arrests and take offenders to police quarters. Some California cities are trying this out in a very limited manner. This is voluntary work (not without risks), generally in combination with policemen and in police cars.

Sale of fireworks is now prohibited in most of our cities, mainly for the protection of the children.

Modern Art and Music

To me, a citizen of Victoria, the modern expression of so-called art and music reflects the signs of the times, shallowness, unrest, discord and want of beauty. The turmoil and conflict arising from the decay of a living faith in God.

It has no message of the spirit, no whispering force to stir the depths of the soul; it cannot uplift.

Let us resurrect the souls of those great artists and musicians from the past, to bring back the joy and beauty to our world today, since ugliness is cultivated and by art and science demonstrated. These are my impressions when I review the results manifested.

Oakalla Warden Praised By Canadian Educator

Oakalla's warden Hugh Christie received high praise yesterday from an old friend, Dr. Samuel Laycock, distinguished Canadian educationist.

One-time chairman of Saskatchewan's Royal commission on penal reform, Dr. Laycock said in Victoria yesterday he had "a very high regard for Hugh Christie."

He said Mr. Christie was hired by Saskatchewan to carry out reforms in the province's prisons following the commission inquiry.

"He did an excellent job in Saskatchewan," Dr. Laycock said. "He is one of the best men in Canada on prison reform."

Japanese Films Favored

Japanese films have made a hit in Victoria, says Dominion theatre manager Martin Cave.

Within a few weeks of his showing of "Ugetsu," Mr. Cave will bring "Gate of Hell" to the Dominion Nov. 22 for a week or more.

Not only does "Gate of Hell" follow the artistic and mystical style of "Ugetsu" and "Rashomon," it is also in color, and has been described as the best of the Japanese films of recent years.

"It is a delight to have a theatre in Victoria showing such films," one woman wrote Mr. Cave. "The acting, photography and direction is flawless."

Mr. Cave said he hopes to bring "Ugetsu" back for a second run in the near future.

Austria Gives Aid To Nazi Victims

VIENNA (AP) — The Austrian cabinet Wednesday approved and sent to parliament a draft bill to set up a $20,000,000 fund for Jews and other victims of Nazi political persecution. The fund, to be used during the next 10 years, covers persons who were victimized in Austria but have since settled abroad.

Faure Wins Confidence Vote But Loses Election Gamble

PARIS (AP) — The French National Assembly gave another vote of confidence to Premier Edgar Faure Saturday night. Officially, Faure won, 285 to 247. Actually, he probably has lost his gamble for December elections.

He won only through the help of about 90 Communist votes. The Communists announced that they were "refusing confidence."

The changed system suggested by Faure is bound to increase the Communist strength in the Assembly. Some estimates go as high as 60 additional seats for the Reds, who now have 94.

They were "refusing confidence." Immediately before the vote the premier told a cabinet meeting he had no will to continue in office if he was kept there only through the help of the Communists. It seemed unlikely President Rene Coty would permit him to resign, however, before he had been defeated on a vote.

Many of the deputies admitted that through Saturday's vote they were only delaying a decision until next week. One of the reasons advanced was that a crisis would be inopportune right now. President Coty's wife died early Saturday.

OTTAWA (BUP) — Governor-General Vincent Massey yesterday sent a message of sympathy to President Rene Coty.

The message said: "On behalf of the Canadian people I send my deepest sympathy to your great loss."

Coty sent word the vote should go on as scheduled, despite the death, and said he would be available for consultations with political leaders in case the government was overthrown.

Faure had asked for the vote of confidence on the question of ending the mandate of the present Assembly on Jan. 2, with elections to be held next month under a system of mod-

British Exports At Record High

LONDON (CP) — Britain's exports to North America reached a record total in October, the board of trade announced Thursday.

Exports last month to Canada and the United States totalled £3,000,000. This is almost 29 per cent more than the average for the L-Robinson and Mrs. C. A. first nine months of 1955.

Grief, Strain Kills Father

CHICAGO (AP) — The grieving father of two of three murdered Chicago schoolboys died Friday after a heart attack.

Anton Schuessler, Sr., succumbed to the weariness and exhaustion of first anxiety and then a ceaseless search for the killer of his only two sons and a playmate.

Schuessler, 42-year-old tailor, was the father of John, 13, and Anton, Jr., 11, whose strangled bodies were found Oct. 18 in the Robinson Woods forest preserves. Also slain was 14-year-old Robert Peterson. The murders remain unsolved.

Thanks Given For Park

Council voted Thursday to thank the B.C. Electric Company for its generosity in offering its Gorge park to Esquimalt.

Mayor Claude L. Harrison said in a letter to council that he understood Esquimalt would accept the park, add some acreage to it and use another portion of it for subdivision.

He said he did not think the people of Esquimalt would ever entertain the idea of destruction of its trees and added that it would be in safe hands.

Fishermen Told To Man Boats

VANCOUVER (CP) — Herring fishermen have been ordered to man the boats and go fishing and thus live up to their agreement with the Fisheries Association of B.C., officials of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union said Friday night.

"Any refusal by union crew members, including skippers, to carry out the decision of the union will be considered as siding with vessel owners in a lockout directed against the union," a spokesman said.

Car Experts Unprepared

Self-styled experts of winter car care were a dime a dozen as winter's first icy blast caught Victoria motorists unprepared.

But clerks in the Clarke-Cordick feed store who smelled the strong odor of a waterless radiator are still puzzled at one driver's theory.

Parked in the car entrance to the store, the car caught the attention of a clerk who noticed that the temperature indicator couldn't go any higher. He suggested to the driver that he could use some water.

"Don't be silly," crisply replied the motorist with a look of disgust for amateur advice. "Can't put any water in there. It will freeze."

At last report, the car was still sitting in the middle of the entrance, blocking other cars from entry. And the rad was still boiling.

YOU!
YOU . . . MR. PUBLIC
ARE THE MOST IMPORTANT
PERSON IN CANADA'S ECONOMY!

Did you know that there isn't enough currency . . . bills and silver . . . in existence to transact the business of Canada for one day? It seems incredible . . . our authority is Reader's Digest for February. Our whole economy is operated on credit . . . your credit.

Yes . . . all governments from Federal to Municipal build railways, highways, bridges, hospitals, harbors and airports on your credit . . . based on your future earning power.

On that same good credit of yours you may travel round the world . . . you may take delivery of a Cadillac . . . take possession of a $15,000 NHA home . . . equip it with every modern facility for gracious living.

Now . . . PRICE & SMITH goes along with this trend and suggests that you make use of some of your own good credit and dress for your own business and social success. They offer you clothing with . . . "sparkle" . . . that "something" that goes beyond mere fabric, color and style. It's the difference . . . that well-tailored appearance that rates an admiring glance. It doesn't say "There is a nice new suit" . . . it says "Here is a well-groomed person."

Amazingly enough, such a suit can be yours for as little as $2.35 per week, and NOTHING DOWN because Price & Smith Trusts You.

When you choose your "tar" blue, your charcoal grey, or your char green, you will find the precise tone in shirts and tie which will best complement it. Your suit will fit perfectly, it's tailoring will be faultless; you will wear it confidently, knowing that you are correctly attired . . . and looking your best.

A beautiful, fashionable topcoat, too, in the right weight for our climate, can be yours for as little as $2.35 per week. A smart sports jacket . . . extending the usefulness of your suits can be had for as little as $1.85 per week . . . and nothing down in either case because Price & Smith Trusts You.

Use your credit prudently; dress for success. And here is a message with which the ladies will agree: a woman's finest accessory is the good appearance of the man she's with! You, too, will say "It's nice, it's from PRICE." Price & Smith, of course!

BRITTA RUNGE... Recorder not record player.

Recorder Virtuoso To Give Concert Here

New Canadian Britta Runge Germany, as Russian rule ap- has considerable trouble when he appeared after the Second World War.

"My violin was left behind and I just happened to have a soprano recorder from the farm camps," she said. She rescued the baritone recorder, the largest one, when a camp leader decided to leave it behind, and bought the alto and tenor in later years, the latter after coming here.

Recorders were popular from 1450 to 1750, but their use decreased because of difficult orchestrations which only the flute could conquer. Today, most of recorders range from $3.50 for the soprano variety to $50 for the largest.

Those owned by Miss Runge are made of maple, except for the soprano, manufactured from a pear tree bough.

Miss Runge's part of the recital includes music by Bach, Mozart, Corelli, Dowland and Couperin, a sonata by Tellman and "Greensleeves."

Soprano Winona Denyes will sing four 15th century songs and selections by Debussy, Massenet, Gounod and Duparc. Recital is sponsored by Victoria Musical Art Society, as part of its 25th anniversary season.

Britain Building Rocket Plane To Fight at 1,500 Miles an Hour

LONDON (Reuters) — A rocket interceptor plane that given unofficially as 1,000 m.p.h. This is the PD-11, designed by Plans are also under way for Short Brothers and Harland at a new experimental fighter de-Belfast.

The speed of the P-1 has been signed to take off vertically. The new plane has very great possibilities.

Known as the SR.53, it will have a mixed power plant carrying rocket and gas turbine engines.

A ministry spokesman said: "We attach great importance to these mixed power projects. The new plane has very great possibilities."

The interceptor, chosen after the ministry had studied many designs, is being produced by the Saunders Roe Company.

Reviewing Britain's military aircraft, the official disclosed that two planes have been regularly exceeding the speed of sound in level flight and climb.

They are the P-1 fighter, built by English Electric, and the Fairy Delta research aircraft.

On Snow and Ice the Rule Is—Take It Easy

By J. T. JONES

Snow is with us early this year, with all its delightful, healthy winter sports—sliding sideways downhill; spinning into ditches, fishtailing through red lights, whirling around with back tires whining for traction, shoveling out ashes and sand to get the car out of a sloping driveway.

Many of us find great joy in these icy dicey pastimes, but for those who prefer just stay out of the game.

First, step lightly on the accelerator. Modern engines have more than enough torque to spin the back wheels in snow, even in top gear—and when the back tires lose their tenuous grip, all is lost.

Second, be smooth about everything you do, especially on corners and hills. The man who hangs down into second on a hill and tramps on the gas will get to the bottom of the grade a darn sight sooner than he'll get to the top. Grand Prix cornering is definitely out for the time being. Coast gently into the bends and keep off the accelerator until very nearly straightened out, or you, too, will be yelling for a tow truck.

Third, be sure the brakes are adjusted for equal effect on all four wheels, and then use them with the utmost discretion. Gentle pumping will stop the car sooner than steady pressure.

Fourth, don't go fast. Your margin of control is so slim you're running mainly on your luck anyway, and it doesn't pay to push it. The legal position is quite shaky, too. If you run into somebody at five miles an hour in the eyes of the law it goes to prove that five miles-an-hour was too fast.

Fifth, keep smiling. If you haven't got into trouble so far, you probably won't at all.

It's a clearly observable fact that small imported cars have less trouble in snow than the large domestic kind. There are several reasons for this.

One is their relatively low power. They don't have that massive brute force at the back wheels to start them spinning, especially if the car is kept in the highest possible gear.

Another factor is the higher proportion of weight on the back wheels. The Volkswagen is outstanding in this regard—not to mention its high ground clearance, excellent suspension and well-chosen gear ratios.

Moreover, light cars require less force to get moving and to stop. (They are also much easier to push.)

The cars to be extremely careful with on snow and ice are those with automatic transmissions. They are set up to deliver the maximum torque to the wheels all the time.

and although the smoothness of these transmissions is a help, high torque is exactly opposite to what is required in winter. The driver must treat that accelerator like a bomb fuse. Tire chains are helpful in any car, and almost essential for cars with automatic shift. Even then, don't count on them too much.

Power brakes are in the same class—splendid on dry roads, but tricky in the snow. Again the only rule is to handle them with caution.

Power steering, on the other hand, can be a help. If the ratio is quite fast, for correcting skids as soon as they start. Its drawback is that it is difficult to know just what the front wheels are up to, at a time when having the feel of the road is most important.

After all this advice, I have to admit I got stuck myself, in my own driveway. After much rocking and roaring, I finally got free with the help of the most valuable equipment there is—a husky neighbor and his muscular son-in-law.

Unless your wife is a weight-lifter, gentleman, always carry a bundle of good shovel, a rope and two strong men in the trunk.

Hope you all got anti-freeze in time. At 1.30 a.m. yesterday one garage I know had a waist-high pile of empty tins, and it was still mounting.

Here's an oddity: pure ethylene glycol, the base for all quality anti-freeze, freezes at six degrees above zero, Fahrenheit. Water freezes at 32 degrees. But mix them in the right proportions and the freezing point plunges to 62 degrees below zero.

By January this may be a useful thing to know.

Public Participation in Ford Year's Biggest Financial Event

By HARRY YOUNG
(Colonist Business Editor)

The opening of the Ford Motor Company as a public company is providing the United States with its major financial event of the year. For the first time since the company was formed 32 years ago, stock will shortly be available to the public and will be traded on open market.

This marks, among other things, the end of the great family companies, which not so long ago were an accepted part of business and industrial life. In the past no one outside the inner ring of the Ford family has known just exactly what the great automobile concern has earned and there is at the moment no method of assessing what the value will be of the 53,461,470 shares which are being created for the new public company.

Some guesses have been made that the stock will trade at around $60. The Ford family holds 172,645 shares of voting class "B" stock, and when this is split 21 new for each one old, the family will offer 60 per cent of these to the public.

The Ford Foundation owns all but a small minority of the 3,322,395 non-voting Class A stock—which is to be split 15-to-1. It intends to offer about 15 per cent of its holdings to the public.

CARRIES VOTING RIGHTS
All the new stock which goes on the open market will carry voting rights. Only the Foundation will own non-voting stock, and his will become voting stock if and when it is sold to the public.

As soon as the new Ford financing is authorized by the SEC, probably early in 1956, details of Ford earnings will become available for the first time.

While Ford itself has been a family concern, its two main subsidiaries have not. Both Ford of Canada and the English Ford Company trade shares on the open market.

They give some clue of the great growth of the group, for in the case of Ford of Canada the price of the stock has risen from $20.50 in 1949 to $144 to day.

LOAD DOUBLED
A new type freight car which will carry eight automobiles instead of four, is being introduced by CNR next spring. A double-decker 16½ feet high and 78 inches long, it is a 34 feet longer than the ordinary box car.

The largest freight car on the system it is being built by Canadian Car and Foundry. Twenty-five units are on order.

VICTORIAN PRESIDES
First president of the newly formed Canadian Technical Association is D. T. Willis, surfacing engineer of the B.C. department of highways. The association will collect and exchange information on the use of bituminous materials. The association was formed in Victoria last month.

FREEZING PLANTS OPENED
Trans-Canada Freezers Ltd. has completed its five new plants at Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Regina, Calgary and Edmonton. They are capable of handling 20,000,000 pounds of food at temperatures down to 50 degrees below zero.

ANNACIS CUSTOMERS

Eight companies have chosen factory sites on the 1200 acres Annacis Industrial Estate on the Fraser river.

They are Atlas Asbestos Co., Bartle and Gibson Co. Ltd., The Bay Co. (B.C.) Ltd., and the Tide Co. (B.C.) Ltd., W. R. Campbell Ltd., Dream Boats and Marina Ltd., John Laing and Son (Canada) Ltd., equipment division, and Stanley Door Co.

STEEL PROFITS SOAR
Atlas Steel has earned $1,165,942 ($1.40 a share) in the first nine months of 1954. Comparative figures for the three-quarter mark in 1953 are not available, but the annual profit for 1954 was only $226,409 (27 cents).

Market Bullish

Confidence Wave Sends Stocks Up

NEW YORK—A sweeping wave of confidence and optimism this week sent the stock market up strongly to a new recovery high.

There was more bullish enthusiasm in Wall Street than at any time since the market was sent sprawling in a giant retraction last September on news of the President's illness.

Measured by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, the market has retraced nearly 77 per cent of the ground lost in the plunge that started Sept. 26 and hit bottom Oct. 4. This week the average raced ahead for the greatest gain in the past year.

So prevailing was the new feeling of confidence that brokers talked about a "quick test of the highs." By that they meant that the market had a good chance of advancing to another record high eclipsing even the peak reached just before the President's illness.

Closing Hour Surge

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market saved most of its strength Friday for the closing hour of trading when industrial added moderately to some earlier narrow gains and a burst of buying appeared in western oils. Except for a few sharp advances in junior base metals, the remainder of the market was listless.

Papers, manufactures, textiles, liquors and constructions displayed an irregularly forward trend. Best individual per-

Aid-for-Passage Immigrant Lure Now Paying Off

LONDON (CP)—Canada's latest step to encourage immigrants from Britain is beginning to pay off.

C. C. Wallace, British-born director of the Canadian immigration service in the United Kingdom, says inquiries have increased "considerably" since the assisted-passage scheme of 1951 was broadened in October to include any immigrant who wanted help in meeting passage costs to Canada.

Previously, passage loans were restricted to school teachers, university professors, nurses, farm laborers, bona fide farming specialists and domestic workers. Now with a minimum £10 down payment, any immigrant can get passage to Canada, repaying the balance of the interest-free loan within two years.

"The enquiries," says Wallace, "represent a wide cross-section of people and jobs. The scheme, by firmly demonstrating that Canada still wants immigrants, is creating great interest in Britain."

But Canada, "like other under-populated countries bidding for suitable immigrants, is competing now with Britain's current good living. The lure of life abroad isn't as appealing now. In 1953, when Britons were anxious to seek new opportunities elsewhere, 47,000 British emigrants went to Canada.

This year, however, only 22,000 Britons left for Canada up to August. Immigration officials hope the wider range of workers now able to ask for passage aid will boost the total before the year ends.

Five immigration centres are open for inquiries—London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Belfast and Dublin. Between them, they handle more than double the total number of successful immigrants through interviews and special film show lectures on Canada.

"We want to see people before they decide to leave," says Wallace, who returned to Britain with the immigration service after spending 40 years in British Columbia.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

The manager of a business firm had glee in his eye. My Saturday's article had a story which fitted a situation in their firm. It described a young man who had been discharged because of a foolish, wrong step in his past. "I want you to know the sequel," said the manager.

Before reading my article and therefore unprompted by it, the firm had taken measures so that the employee could come back. The executive dealing with the case told him, "I am as delighted to be able to tell you this as I was disappointed to have to tell you we could no longer employ you."

A completely new set of circumstances has been created. No longer need the employee fear that his past will be found out. Since the manager regards him as a person of character and intelligence, he believes the young man is on the road to a brilliant future.

Isn't there a lot of good in life? Sometimes we see only the bad. We become cyni-

Children Required

A man in Calgary was distressed by the fact that people with children could not rent dwellings. So he built blocks of homes which he rents at little more than cost, stipulating that the tenants must have children!

Down by a large grocery store a small boy was searching frantically for something. His younger brother had tears streaming down his face as he followed him about. "What's wrong?" asked a man. "I've lost five dollars!" The boy had been sent for groceries and now all the tragedy of the world was in his pale, pinched face. The man held out his hand. "Here, go buy your groceries!" The boy stood clutching the five dollars and in the eyes turned to the man were the awe and love we feel when we look in the face of God.

Again and again I hear people who have had sorrow strike say, "I didn't know there were so many kind people in the world." The amount of courage in the average person is also part of all believing. As that astounding spire, Helen Keller, said, "Although the world is very full of suffering, it is also full of the overcoming of it."

Nothing is more important than to believe that God becomes incarnate in men. To believe that despite man's follies, his vanities and cruelties, God's power possesses men and reveals itself in the devotion, compassion, generosity, and courage of beings; is one of the most stimulating, empowering, ennobling faiths known. Every man born into the world carries with him the Divine light of Christ.

Few truths have encouraged me as much as the words of John. "Greater is He than in you, than he that is in the world" (1 John iv. 4). The power of evil looms monstrous and frightening. But the Divine power of light and joy and goodness inevitably pushes back darkness and chaos. Professor Hocking expressed my unflinching conviction. "The world has a character which justifies hope and serenity."

Isaiah said that God's highway for mankind is called "The Way of Holiness." The drunken driver, the man who will not heed the rules of the road, goes into a ditch and wrecks himself. We live in a world where righteousness rules and unrighteousness ruins. It's a good world.

Good for Many Ills

LONDON (UP)—A new antibiotic claimed to be 10 times more effective than penicillin is described in the British Medical Journal by a Russian scientist.

Dr. G. F. Gause, deputy director of the Institute for Antibiotic Research of Medical Sciences in Moscow, reported that in tests extending from 1952 the new substance, albomycin, had:

Proved effective in treatment of pneumonia, especially in young children; in the septic complications of dysentery and measles, and in meningitis due to penicillin-resistant pneumococci.

It has also been used with good effect, he said, in the treatment of

Train Strikes Passing Cars; Four Injured

LAKE COWICHAN—Six young people narrowly escaped death when two passing cars were struck by an E and N Railway freight train at a level crossing here.

Most seriously injured was driver of one of the cars, Leigh-Hirst of Duncan who suffered head lacerations and shock. Three others in the car, including Lillian Beevor-Potts who received head cuts and shock, were slightly injured.

The other vehicle was driven by J. McCallum of Sidney. Mr. McCallum and his passenger escaped with minor injuries.

The first vehicle was demolished and the other badly damaged.

QUALICUM BEACH—Pharmacists from all parts of Vancouver Island will attend a "capsule college" at Qualicum Beach Inn Nov. 20.

Several professors from University of British Columbia will address the pharmacists.

CHEMAMINUS—Bob Miller of Chemainus was rescued off Thetis Island Friday when his 28-foot fishing boat was sunk in heavy seas.

Mr. Miller was rescued by Roy Couch who was aboard the vessel Rose N.

Growth Stressed

QUALICUM BEACH—Growth of Canada's industries across the country was stressed by J. G. Crean, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce when he conferred with local chamber officers here recently.

Mr. Crean said areas which showed special activity were the grain growing and oil producing centres.

COURTENAY—This year's annual fall fair brought in profit of more than $1,000. It was reported at the annual meeting of the fair board recently.

About $11,000 was handled during the fair.

NANAIMO—Body of 81-year-old John Spencer who died recently at Northfield was forwarded to the faculty of medicine at UBC yesterday.

It was Mr. Spencer's request that his body be used by the faculty. He was well known in the Nanaimo district, where he moved 40 years ago.

Policy Alarms

NANAIMO—Members of Nanaimo Recreation Commission have expressed alarm at a new "whiphand" policy by the parks board.

Commission members feel its existence is threatened by the policy which is to send all applications for use of parks facilities on to the commission only after such use is granted by the board.

Recreation commission chairman Jack Parker termed it a "whiphand" policy.

"We might as well put out of the picture," said Mr. Parker. "Our superintendent can't possibly program activities under these conditions."

Commissioner Earl Bamford, park board representative, attributed the board's stand to "a feeling of loss" over control of the parks.

"The small recognition from city council given the board was being supplanted by regained prestige when the recreation commission entered the picture less than a year ago to program activities," he said.

Action on the board's policy is being deferred until next commission meeting when it is hoped for clarification.

COURTENAY—A petition signed by more than 140 voters has been presented to city council asking that the half-day holiday by-law be changed from Wednesday to Saturday.

Council is forced by law to hold a public ballot and this will be done on the day of the municipal elections, Dec. 8. The Retail Merchants' Association of Courtenay is attempting to have Friday and night as late closing night for all shops except food stores.

NANAIMO—The sudden cold snap kept firemen busy here, with eight calls being answered during the holiday break.

Worse blaze was at the home of J. Morri, 73 Wallace

Lost Logger Found After Long Hunt

CAMPBELL RIVER—Search for a logger missing in dense bush between Gold River and Campbell River ended shortly after daybreak yesterday.

Frank Brenton of Courtenay was found by a party a short distance from where he was last seen. He was suffering from shock and exposure.

Mr. Brenton went missing when he left the Gold River Logging Company on the west coast to meet a car which was to bring him here.

When he failed to show up Friday a search party was organized but it was not until yesterday morning that the missing man was found.

He said he had wandered off the road.

Engineers' Strike 'Getting into Stride'

Strike of the Operating Engineers' Union (AFL-TLC) today with a statement by a line would be denied access to company property, it was stated.

In Vancouver yesterday Harry Berger, agent for the engineers' union, said the strike was just starting to get into its stride.

He said picket lines had been re-established on the Island after being scared off by overwhelming crowds menacing them.

He added that the IWA was legally correct in ordering its members to report for work at the mills affected but "so far as trade unionism is concerned it was poor advice."

Meanwhile, Tony Poje said members of his local were going to try and keep the mills going.

"This strike has nothing more than nuisance value and we are not going to tolerate it any longer," he said.

The strike was called last Sunday to back up engineers' demands for a 10-per-cent wage increase.

Workers on one side of the line could go to work, including all the bunkhouse crews, while workers on the other side of

Wind Chills Spectators

Weather Does Not Deter Island Memorial Services

Residents of many Vancouver Island centres yesterday braved freezing temperatures and strong winds to attend local Remembrance Day services.

At Duncan, several hundred people turned out on the coldest day for several years for the memorial service at the Cross of Remembrance.

The service was conducted by Duncan ministers with a choir under the direction of C. A. Howard.

Notes of the "Last Post" were whistled away in a biting northerly wind when Alberni valley residents attended the service at the cenotaph in Port Alberni.

The services, sponsored by the Sons of the Canadian Legion, were well attended despite the weather.

Spectators sought shelter from the wind against the west wall of the city hall and in front of the First United church but various contingents of the parade were forced to stand in exposed positions.

A similar service was held at Courtenay where there was a smart parade of veterans and members of the armed forces. A detachment from the RCAF base at Comox and the local division of the Canadian-Scottish Regiment took part.

An impressive service was held at Tofino, on the west coast of the Island, where Rev. John Leighton boarded the fishing cruiser Laurier to conduct a service in the bay.

Capt. W. Redford and crew assembled on the fo'c'sle and a wreath of ferns and Flanders poppies was thrown into the sea.

Husky Strategy Fails As UCLA Saves Game With 18 Seconds Left

University of Washington's unpredictable Huskies came within 18 seconds of one of the season's biggest college football upsets yesterday.

BLOW BIG LEAD
Playing against UCLA, one of the ranking teams in the U.S.A., the Huskies had a 17-0 lead at one stage and were still ahead, 17-16, with 18 seconds left. That's when halfback Jim Decker kicked a field goal from the 25 yard line to give the Bruins a 19-17 decision in a game which had 45,519 fans in a frenzy of excitement.

Recovering quickly after the Bruins scored the first time they had the ball, the Huskies tied it when halfback Jim Jones tied 61 yards with an interception. A second touchdown in the second quarter and a field goal brought the score to 17-17, and it appeared as if an upset was all but certain.

Then the Bruins called on their All-American fullback can didate, Bob Davenport, and he sparked them in a 69 yard scoring march which brought the score to 19-17.

Bruins then lost the ball on the Washington 12 yard line but a penalty set the Huskies back on their six. With time running out, quarterback Steve Roark connected a safety touch in order to keepball possession. The two points was the difference as the Bruins got possession on the Washington 45 with just two minutes left. They got to the 19 then called on Decker for the field goal.

BOWL GAME SET
Elsewhere on the college gridiron, Maryland and Oklahoma rolled along to make certain an Orange Bowl clash between the two clubs generally ranked one and two in the Big 10, the other Rose Bowl berth is between Michigan and Michigan State, and will be decided on Saturday when Michigan plays Ohio State.

Royal Roads Retains Junior Grid Trophy

Royal Roads won the Admiral Howard Trophy for the second straight year Friday by edging powerful HMCS Venture 65 in a Victoria Junior Canadian Football League clash played on a snow-covered field at Royal Athletic park Friday afternoon.

Venture, which entered the game with an undefeated record in local junior competition, smothered the Royal Road cadets 41-5 in the first meeting between the service clubs this season. Venture won the league title last season but was upset by Roads in the annual clash for the Hibbard Trophy.

QUARTERBACK STARS
Ron Rennie, brilliant Royal Road quarterback, proved the downfall of the Venture cadets. He set up their only touchdown with a pass, and he converted for the winning point and pulled winners out of several tough situations in the final quarter with his booming punts.

Two Victories For Esquimalt In Rugby Play

Two Esquimalt rugby teams posted decisive victories Thursday in play to decide the inter-high school senior "B" and junior league rugby champion ship.

Esquimalt juniors trimmed Oak Bay 9-3 in the first game of a best-of-three series. Craig Andrews put Oak Bay into a 10 first half lead but two tries by Steve Lantz and one by Terry Hawley in the second half gave Esquimalt the win.

Manchester City Loses Lead After 2-1 Upset by Wanderers

LONDON (Reuters)—The Manchester United each has 21 points but are separated by goal average.

In the second division, Swansea Town hung onto its lead despite a 6-1 trouncing by Leicester City. Bristol City pulled to within a point of the leader, defeating Bury, 4-2.

Leicester City, Bristol City and Bury all scored in five goals during the first half, when the Palace goalkeeper, Roy Bailey, left the news because of an injury and was replaced by another player. Bailey played on the forward line for the rest of the game.

Hands Frostbitten During Rescue Bid

High seas spelled trouble for eight Victorians Friday, and one of the many volunteer searchers suffered frostbitten hands in rescue attempts.

A. R. Alexander, 2977 Foul Bay road, a neighbor of one of five youths stranded overnight on Chatham Island Friday, returned home yesterday by the CKDA workboat Chatham Chief, piloted by Norman Bergquist. Their 12-foot boat was towed back by the radio station vessel.

Stranded from 11 a.m. Friday to noon yesterday were Roger Barclay, 15, 2981 Foul Bay; Mark Scott, 15, 30 Cambridge; Bob Strath, 16, 2760 Burdick; David Cook, 17, 555 Newport; and a youth identified only as Peter Thompson.

Parents and friends of the youths, Oak Bay police constables Jack Groves and Jack Bryan, fisherman Thor Miller and naval vessels took part in a search until the Discovery island lightkeeper sent word the youths were safe.

They spent the night in a private home on the island where a caretaker lent them several sleeping bags. They returned in the two dinghies which took them on the duck hunting trip.

A 75-foot RCN emergency auxiliary vessel and the coastal escorts Brockville and Digby, returning from exercises in Juan de Fuca strait, were unable to get close enough to shore to assist because of dangerous conditions.

Schools Aid 'Slow Learners'

How the Greater Victoria school board "eases the pressure" of the regular curriculum so that "slow learners" can be taught the 3-Rs and other basic skills in their own time, was outlined Thursday at a meeting of the Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children.

Speaker Miss A. V. Turner, director of the division of tests and measurements for Greater Victoria schools, told of the careful and lengthy process of selection based on tests, interviews and case history study necessary before each individual "Teachers in general are very high levels, and serving 125 children interested in slow learners, but don't, are operated by the we don't like any labels attached Greater Victoria school board to these children," Miss Turner said.

Huge Jackpot for Sure-Shot

NEW YORK (AP)—A York, Pa., housewife, who once battled the Germans at Leningrad as a second lieutenant in the Soviet infantry, Saturday night won $50,000 on a television quiz program by identifying correctly four American rifles.

Mrs. Kyra Petrovskaya Shirk answered all questions about the rifles' history. She then selected the right kind of ammunition, loaded it into a Springfield rifle and fired a blank cartridge above the heads of the studio audience.

Next Saturday she may try for the $100,000 jackpot of the program, NBC's "Big Surprise."

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A Texas housewife Saturday night won a new car each year for life in one of the potentially biggest prizes in television's giddy giveaway history.

Mrs. John Anderson, 31, of Fort

Worth, burst into tears when she was announced as winner in a traffic safety quiz conducted on the Lawrence Welk show over ABC-TV.

The Welk show is sponsored by an automobile manufacturer who will give her a new car annually for the rest of her life.

Ironically, all three contestants in the traffic safety contest were involved in an auto accident on their way to the studio Saturday night.

Davy Crockett Returns In Hour-Long Adventure

By ROY PARRETT

Davy Crockett returns to television this week in another adventure-packed, hour-long Disneyland feature. This time it is "Davy Crockett's Keelboat Race."

Davy's latest adventure, set along the Ohio river, are based on a legendary incident, rather than a factual story. Davy pits his skill and daring against a boastful river captain who calls himself "King of the River."

The resulting clash will be seen on channel 5, Wednesday at 8 p.m., and on channel 2 Saturday afternoon at 5.30.

"President of the Press" is the theme of concert by Dave and 2 Spectra at 5 p.m. Monday night. This is the second annual variety show by Promoters Showcase Incorporated with the assistance of the Press Club. Jimmy Wagner, Alvin Hildren, Milton Berle, Gene Garson and Peggy Lee are among the entertainers.

Famous Film Festival a series of top movies seen on channel 5 every Saturday and Sunday night at 7.30, has proven popular with local viewers. Most pictures are outstanding productions of British studios.

Tonight KING-TV is presenting the second half of "Caesar and Cleopatra," with Vivien Leigh and Claude

Rains, featuring a cast of thousands. Next Saturday the picture will be "So Young, So Red," with Paul Henreid and Catherine McLeod.

Coming up soon on Sunday Film Festivals are "The Laverne Hill Mob," "Blue Lagoon," and "The Ivory Hunters."

The tender story, "The Red Shoes," will be seen in two parts, on Christmas Day and on New Year's Day, on the channel 5 program.

The highly amusing "Tight Lash Island" will be the feature on Jan. 15.

NBC-TV is presenting outstanding films in color to help popularize the idea of programs in full color. Included in the offerings are color dramas seen on channel 4 at 12 noon daily. Outstanding one this week is "Saturday's Afternoon," an adaptation of "The Aspern Papers."

Most interesting movie of the week is a two-hour Australian film, "Wherever She Goes," a charming and delightful story on channel 4, Friday night at 10.35.

The film, set in an Australian environment, tells the story of the world-renowned concert pianist, John Jones. This unique offering is a must-see attraction.

Feature of the week on channel 2 is "The Mice and Men," a

Hiss, Not Whistle, Madrid Wolf Call

The fun and excitement of far away places as experienced by a couple of young honeymooners using Europe on a shoestring budget is being presented by The Daily Colonist in a weekly series of articles. The groom, Stephen Scott, former staff correspondent of the Victoria Free Press, and his bride, the former Miss Trudy O'Connell, are a member of the promotion department of the Victoria radio station CBN. They plan to visit about 15 European countries during their honeymoon, which will take them to Spain, Italy, Austria and France on a budget of less than $1,000.

BY STEPHEN SCOTT

"Hiss," Trudy looked around for the source. A young Spaniard took her in from head to toe then walked on.

Four clicks struck the hour, the last five minutes after the first.

The signboards on one side of the highway are half-a-kilometre different to the ones on the other side.

A garageman tried and actually succeeded in saving us money.

T. EATON CO.

These are some of the outstanding impressions of a week in easy-going Spain, mostly in Madrid, that have contributed to our desire to remain here for some time.

Arriving in Spain from indifferent France, we drove into a virtual garden of friendliness. If we ignored, as most tourists do, the obvious signs of poverty, we saw a land of beauty basking under an almost summer sun.

SUFFERED THREE DAYS

The weakness of the flesh—we suffered for three days the agonies of badly upset stomachs, the result of drinking tap water—and of the car—could not discourage our thorough liking for the country.

Of course the favorable money exchange makes many things seem rosy to us. We have a fair hotel room and three meals for two for $3.80 per day.

The Spaniards open, unabashed curiosity takes some getting used to. If there is something that interests a native he or she just stares until either the curiosity is satisfied, or there is nothing more to be found out.

NO WHISTLE

The wolf in Madrid does not whistle, he hisses. He comes in two varieties, the passer and the persistent. The first looks a girl, over and hisses as he passes, the second will follow for a block or two. Trudy has found that a dirty look is not the slightest deterrent to either. Almost all the men have an eye for the women. Their girl friends don't seem to object to open appraisal of all passing young women.

The women, generally shod in unspectacular shoes, are fascinated by Trudy's green snakeskin open-toed high-heeled sandals. While the men are staring at all of Trudy, their girl friends are looking at her shoes. Everybody ignores Stephen.

WINTERING VISITORS

Madrid is full of wintering Americans and Britons. Walk down the street or sitting at a sidewalk cafe one is not surprised to hear the English language.

Once, when Trudy was trying to cross a particularly crowded street, she called out to Stephen in the car: "Everybody's staring at me."

"Not staring at you," came a strong American voice from a car. "Worried about you."

The tourist in Madrid is treated with extreme courtesy. There is always someone willing to take the trouble to help a foreigner. Of course there are the racketeers.

MEET COUPLE

Stephen met a couple one day. He was having his shoes shined by a couple of urchins when suddenly one found something the matter with the heel of one shoe. In a second the heel was off and another one hammered on. The price they said was 100 pesetas (about $2.60), about half the price of a new pair of shoes in Madrid. It took half an hour to convince the young cranks it would be better to replace the old heel than to call the police.

We carried three Australian hitchhikers from France to Madrid. Everywhere we went Spaniards stared in open admiration of Stephen with his harem of four women. The three, by the way, had visited or intended to visit 17 countries.

There is a great romance in central Spain reached after a steep mountain climb from the border to the interior. The mountain drive from the border to the interior is like the drive over the plain is like the prairie with its large ranges cut up into small farms.

STOPPED ONE NIGHT

The car would not make the trip to Madrid in one day. We stopped one night in a small city where our hotelman told us in French, the common tourist language in Spain, that Canada is a "very good country." We don't know how he knew. He also told us that he had never been out of Spain.

By the way, we find the Spaniards speak better French than the French. Anytime a Spaniard speaks French to us we generally get his meaning. We didn't get to Madrid without trouble. A water hose burst and an obliging Spanish garage man patched it for 25 cents. Then we had a blowout. We couldn't replace the blown tire, because we found the automatic jacks on the car couldn't be operated.

SIGNALLED TRUCK

We signalled a truck. The driver and swamper changed the tire for us without saying a word. The truck had stopped in the middle of the highway and that's where it stayed, all traffic going around it.

In Madrid a new tire was necessary and a garage man said that retreads are not available. The price of a new tire was $29. The next day he said he had found a retread and saved us $15.

We went to a show. We didn't particularly want to go, but the chance of seeing Danny Kaye speaking Spanish was too much to resist. It was funny.

We like easy-going Madrid. The Spaniard takes two hours for lunch and all the shops are closed. He has a heavy four-course lunch, then either staggers to bed for a while or goes in a restaurant to order coffee for coffee which costs him the third of the price of his meal. He stops work about 6 p.m. and strolls the streets till dinner time between nine and 10 p.m.

Next week we plan to remain near Madrid visiting only nearby places. We are to see a bull fight.

Last of 'Els' Dismantled

Last of the New York elevated lines, the Third Avenue "El" is disappearing from the metropolitan scene as wrecking crews take the historic transit system apart with magical speed. This photo, taken near the 42nd street intersection, shows a huge steel beam being hoisted from its supporting uprights. The gigantic task of dismantling the structure is expected to be finished by January. (Central Press Canadian)

Globe-Walker No. 1 On Last 10,000 Miles

VIENNA (NANA) — Globe-walker No. 1, 51-year-old Andre Billaud of Bordeaux, France, has just crossed the Austro-Bavarian border and is now heading for the Iron Curtain frontier. He is on the final 10,000-mile lap of a walking tour around the world.

For 36 years Billaud has been footslogging it around the world at the rate of 3,500 miles a year.

"I have toured the five continents," he said, "and have covered more than 120,000 miles. When I have completed this final lap, I shall retire."

Foot-slogging Billaud has been promised a lump sum of $20,000 on a substantial milestone by an Australian millionaire, William Johnson, if he completes approximately 130,000 miles on foot.

Japanese Inns Inexpensive, Neat and Clean

By DAVID BROWN

To spend a night or so in a Japanese country inn is a novel and charming adventure that will provide a of the world's most colorful countries. Unlike "native" accommodations found in some lands, the Japanese inns are exquisitely clean and once the visitor has discovered that sleeping on the floor is no hardship—very comfortable.

There are literally thousands of excellent inns throughout Japan, with especially heavy concentration at seaside and mountain resorts and other areas whose temples and scenery attract foreign visitors. But too many of these visitors have been deprived of the pleasant experience by tales of insurmountable language barriers, unusual plumbing facilities and alarming tales of mixed bathing.

The language problem can be surmounted. And furthermore it can prove a lot of fun, for both the visitor and the inn staff. The maids, for example, are most anxious to help and while they may giggle themselves to a point of near-collapse over your pantomime, a pocket dictionary and the hotel manager (who generally knows some English) will come to your rescue.

CLEAN, ANYWAY
The plumbing is a bit different, but is spotlessly clean. And mixed bathing—common in universal non-compulsory Japanese inns—has by now accepted the fact that the peculiar westerner insists on privacy while bathing. But if you feel particularly daring, you will be perfectly welcome in the communal pool, and no one will stare.

Japanese inns offer two standard plans, lodging with two meals or without meals. Prices vary considerably but at the better places the rates run from $1 to $6 a day with two meals included.

The old custom of leaving an envelope with money with the innkeeper for the help on departure is fast going out of fashion. Today bills are presented upon leaving and are invariably computed carefully and honestly. Travellers now prefer to moderately tip the maid, cook, bath boy and shoe boy.

DO'S AND DON'TS
A few "dos" and "don'ts" are suggested for travellers staying at an inn. DO be formally polite even at the expense of "laying it on." The Japanese, to whom politeness is almost a religion, are sometimes bewildered and hurt by foreign brusqueness. DO take off your shoes when entering. That's a "must," for too matting floors must be kept clean. DO cooperate on meals and bath schedules. DO carry your own towels and soap. DON'T grow impatient and cause scenes. Remember the language difficulties and the fact the inn's personnel is trying hard to deal with a foreign problem. DON'T forget soap in the bathtub. The Japanese tub is strictly for soaking and relaxing. The job of getting clean is done outside the tub, a pail of water and a dipper being provided for rinsing purposes. DON'T overlook the fact that the maids are respectable girls. Just because they aren't shocked if they see you when you aren't fully clothed doesn't mean they aren't respectable. After all standards of modesty vary the world around.

Humidity a Problem with Fireplaces

By J. RALPH DALZIELL

Last winter readers from all parts of the country were concerned about chimney troubles and how to correct them. They complained that plaster on or around chimneys (see points A and B in the picture) often became wet when their gas-fired furnaces were in operation the greater part of the time. This wetting through the flue of an unlined chimney where the brickwork is apt to be cold, the vapor condenses and water is deposited on the sides of the flue, where it may soak through the mortar joints and brick and soak the plaster. To avoid this, unlined flues should be equipped with metal linings available at heating equipment dealers.

wood trim and even the plaster. Now, before steady interior heating is required, is the time to inspect chimneys and do or have done any necessary repairs.

The picture shows the top of a typical unlined chimney found in many houses, and particularly in old homes. The interior sides of the brick form the flue.

When gas burns, the products of combustion (invisible smoke) contain a considerable amount of water vapor. This is especially true when natural gas is burned. As the products of combustion rise and gas-fired heating equipment should be vented to a chimney. Unless this is done, the water vapor in the products of combustion will make the interiors of homes so humid that condensation troubles with windows, walls and floors will be experienced.

If coal oil is used and chimney plaster gets wet, it is likely that the flashing (shown in the picture) is rusted through and should be replaced. New metal flashing can be cut the same shape and size as the old. Mortar of one part Portland cement and three parts clean sand is forced into the joints at point C where the flashing is embedded. A cricket helps to divert rain water and melting snow away from the chimney. Concrete or stone chimney caps prevent water from running down through the brick joints.

The draft can be impaired if the flue has a heavy deposit of soot. Soot causes a fire hazard, it may burn with high heat. To clean a flue stuff a burlap bag with rags or excelsior and weight the bag with three heavy bricks. Tie the bag to a rope and raise and lower it several times in the flue. Soot can be removed at the base of the chimney.

In old chimneys the mortar in joints D, E and F may be weakened, loose or missing and be a fire hazard when sparks burn. Sparks may be forced through the defective joints and start a fire. Clean out all defective joints and refill with a cement and sand mortar.

When remodeling around an old chimney, particularly one without a flue lining, place incombustible material (see point A) against the chimney surfaces. If a chimney extends from the roof below the ridge, its top should be at least three feet above the ridge to provide draft.

Planning Needed

Streets Need Not Be Ugly Industrial Council Believes

OTTAWA (CPI) — Canada's design centre where the exhibit streets need not be ugly.

That is the theme of the national industrial design council, a government-sponsored agency devoted to improving the appearance of objects from soup ladles to furniture which Canadians use from day to day.

Now the council is turning its attention to "street furniture"—street lights, signs, bus stops and other objects which have become an ever-present part of urban life.

In an unusual pictorial exhibit it has drawn attention to things which are mostly taken for granted, but which spring into ugly prominence under the camera's focus.

The display shows signposts loaded with direction markers, stoplights like Christmas tree ornaments, unsightly trash cans, gargoyle-like fire hydrants of all shapes and sizes, mid-Victorian street-light standards displaying wild flights of an ironmaster's fancy.

It also shows what can be done with imagination and inventiveness to bring style, simplicity and utility to streets.

"There has been no long-term planning," said D. W. Buchanan, director of the council's downtown winter street sanding; graceful benches to match the beauty of parks; legible, carefully placed direction signs giving the minimum of information necessary.

ENGLISH, TOO Not all the bad examples shown are in Canada. One picture from England shows an ornamental lamp post bearing seven different sizes and shapes of signs—even a little one saying "To the Presbyterian church."

HANDY EXAMPLES Many of the horrible examples pictured are in Ottawa, because they were the handiest to photograph. But Norman Ilay, assistant director of the design centre, said counterparts can be found in any city.

City fathers aren't to blame, he added. Well-designed street equipment often can't be bought. The federal district commission at Ottawa couldn't find on the market the kind of overhead lights it wanted for a recently-built bridge and had to design and make them itself.

Here are some of the suggested improvements: A new fire hydrant of stainless steel with sleek, straight lines; gay geometric designs painted on sandboxes for

Antarctic Trip May Uncover Vast Resources

LONDON (Reuters)—A small ship will sail from here Monday carrying 17 explorers on the first stage of a bid to open up the vast unexplored Antarctic continent where great wealth may lie buried.

It will face many months of living in shacks in temperatures as much as 120 degrees below freezing.

But the prizes may be tremendous—important new air routes over the base of the world, scientific discoveries, perhaps treasure troves of uranium, gold and other precious minerals.

The enterprise, officially known as the Commonwealth trans-Antarctic expedition of 1955-58, is the most ambitious and scientifically planned attempt yet made to explore the south polar continent.

Its climax will come some time in March, 1958, when two parties—a British group and one from New Zealand led by the co-conqueror of Mount Everest—will link up, having come from opposite directions.

By that time, the explorers may, for all they know, have discovered a mountain higher than Everest.

Vast stretches, almost as large as Europe and Australia combined, never have been charted, even from the air. Ships can only show it as a blank space.

Many experts are convinced that minerals lie under the ice, though until now the only finds on the outer edges of the continent have been deposits of low-grade coal and some copper. Another theory may, however, turn out to be true—that Antarctica is merely a great sheet of ice with only the sea, or a scattered group of islands, below.

TO COVER 2,000 MILES

In 1957 and 1958, about 29 expeditions are planned. Eleven nations propose to set up 20 stations in the Antarctic. The Commonwealth expedition is the biggest. It will cost nearly £500,000 and cover 2,000 miles of the continent. Britain regards it as her major effort for the international geophysical year of 1957-58.

Dr. Vivian Fuchs, 54-year-old explorer and scholar leading the expedition, will sail with the advance party on Monday aboard the expedition ship, and 20-ton Canadian steel-cathode vessel named the Theron.

Hillary will join the Theron at Maudslayi, Uruguay, and stay with the advance party for a short time to pick up experience of Antarctic conditions and the problems of base building.

Service to mark national Young People's Week will be held in St. Aidan's church this evening. Lance Whitaker will discuss the topic "His World for Our World," and members of the St. Aidan's and Chinese young people's unions will attend.

City Group Picks Fry Play

Christopher Fry's romantic comedy, "The Lady's Not for Burning," will be presented by the Victoria College Players' Club in February, president Russell Gurney has announced.

Tentative dates for the play are Feb. 23, 24 and 25 in the Union room of the college. Members of the cast are Marjorie Gilbert, Heather Manson, Robert Warren, John Sparks and Mr. Gurney.

Mrs. Flora Nicholson will direct the play.

A PADRE IN PRINT

By REV. WILLIAM HILLS

Here it is. November is not yet two weeks old and already we are being pressured into Christmas for, in one of our larger departmental stores, toyland is already open for business.

All we need to hear now is that nauseating ditty (to quote Anna Russell) of synthetic innocence: "How much is that dog in the window?"

Brother! But this rushing of the season of mirth and jollity must be a bit awkward for parents who have just swept the house clear of witches and hobgoblins left over from Halloween.

Of course, the kids and the moppets don't mind this November pre-echo of the Yuletide bells. They can feast their eyes upon what they want. They know they have a sufficient long period of weeks in which to blackmail their hapless folks.

Santa Claus? Yah—don't be stupid, he's the bunk! Old Doc Chisholm told them so.

Isn't there some restraining decency in the hearts of our merchant princes which would muffle the Christmas cash registers until December turns up on the calendar?

But the picture is not quite so black as it has been painted. Do you remember the slogan of last year—

"Let's keep Christ in Christmas?"

Not Quite so Black

Well, I was looking at some Christmas cards currently on display in one of our larger book-shops. They seemed to be of the usual variety—frothy evergreens, red-nosed Saint Nicks, dogs and open-hearted firebrakes, etc.

Then I saw a larger display of religious-looking ones.

"Do you really get a demand for these?" I asked.

"We certainly do," came the reply. "Last Christmas there was not a single religious card left in stock. It was the same at Easter. Because of this, we have put in a greater stock this season. We know we shall sell them all."

Would you say, I queried, "that there is a swing towards what I would call Christian cards?"

"Absolutely!"

If this trend in Christmas cards is a barometer of public taste, then it is possible that the people themselves will slow down these commercial eager-beavers. In the meantime, I call upon the Junior Chamber of Commerce to get their "Christ in Christmas" campaign rolling.

It's a bit early but don't be left behind, boys!

Queen Yields to Fad For Modern Wallpaper

The Queen has yielded to the modern style for wallpapers instead of painted walls, which have been the rule in the private apartments of Buckingham Palace for nearly 30 years.

Her own business room, boudoir and bedroom are being hung with papers in quiet modern designs against a neutral tinted background.

The "two-paper contrast" decorative scheme finds no favor with the Queen and each of her rooms is hung with only one design paper.

The private royal apartments in the north-west block of the palace, overlooking Green park, and the nursery suite on the floor above are being completely redecorated in soft pastel shades. Being repapered too, are some of the state rooms on the first floor where guests at official receptions and dinner parties gather. Here the new patterns are the same as those chosen originally by Queen Mary for these rooms 15 years ago—a plain off-white in alternating strips of glossy and matt finish or surface. This design was ground to set off formal evening dresses.

The royal paper designs are more exclusive than Paris fashion models. No other paper has been or will be printed with the same patterns as those chosen by the Queen.

TALKING OF ANIMALS

A Home Unfit For a Dog—

By E. D. WARD HARRIS

A DOG, like a child, is condemned to spend its early life in a palace, a shack or any other kind of citadel in which it finds itself. That's the luck of the draw. But there the analogy ends, for when grown the child, in most cases, is free to change its environment. The dog, however, is stuck with it.

The problems of race color creed class distinction and money which beset humans for fortunate do not apply to animals and a dog pays no attention to the status of its master. In exchange for food, a place to sleep, affection and adequate exercise it will supply loyalty until death, companionship and protection. How many humans do you know who would sign that sort of a contract?

In case you are wondering what the dickens I am getting at, I am leading up to the blunt question: Is your home fit for a dog to live in? No offense meant, please, it is just that so many people have asked me elementary things in connection with their dogs that I thought a few hints might be in order.

THIS HAPPENED

The number of wise and competent dog-owners is legion and if you are one of these I suggest you turn the page and read something else because, in the belief that we learn more readily by our mistakes, I'm going to give you an example of a bad home.

This actually happened. It occurred in the home of a woman who finally sought my advice.

She and her husband had never considered owning a dog, they had their thrust upon them. The husband was talked into it by an office colleague who was looking for homes for some puppies. They resisted the idea at first, but finally agreed because they thought it might be fun for Junior.

Well, it was three weeks before the puppy was old enough to leave the mother, three weeks during which these amateurs could have read up on the breed and made some preparations for the puppy's reception. Of course they did not, and the kind and a nice performance it was on the night the small creature arrived.

BAD START

The husband was in a bad temper to start with because that night he didn't beat the puppy had wetted the up hoistery of his car during the drive home. But worse was to come. Junior was up long past his bedtime and the frightened creature was promptly banished to the child's room where it was to stay until it was old enough to be put in a cage.

The animal already nervous, became petrified by the noisy youngster and not knowing the geography of the place and therefore being unable to retreat, it snapped. That it was the worst of its life, I don't know, but it was a bad start.

After snatching the young dog out of the child's room and putting it in a cage, the mother, who had been watching the dog, saw the child immediately mess on the floor. For this it was again whacked, after having its raphy of the place. A bed room rushed into the mess, and was then put outside the front door.

After a while when they got out of a protesting Junior, the puppy was brought in and plunked down in the kitchen before a saucer of water and a saucer of scraps off the pot, soaked with bread. The puppy wouldn't touch any of it. It was then relegated to the basement where it spent the night on an old jacket.

USED LIKE TOY

For the next few months things continued in the same slapdash, disastrous way with the dog being hauled out and put away with the rest of Junior's toys. Because of the messes on carpets the dog was now banned from all carpeted rooms and later from the house altogether other than the basement.

And so the family and the dog reached a modus vivendi. The woman placed some food on the back porch whenever she thought of it and the dog or some other dog would eat it.

For the rest of the time the animal conveniently "got lost." If it was around at night, it was permitted into the basement.

If it wasn't it stayed out. It was as simple as that. Multiple complaints from neighborhood gardeners finally shamed the woman into talking the matter over with a friend who in turn sought my help.

The dog was in a shocking condition. It had never had a bath and its coat was matted and full of fleas. It had skin trouble was thin and worst of all was cowed and scared of humans.

LANTING DAMAGE

To cut a long story short, that dog is now living in the country in a good home but it is doubtful whether the damage caused can ever be fully repaired.

Now these people weren't cruel in the accepted sense, but they were ignorant and they knew the animal or starve hoistery of his car during the drive home. But worse was to come. Junior was up long past his bedtime and the frightened creature was promptly banished to the child's room where it was to stay until it was old enough to be put in a cage.

should have been prepared against its will. By instinct it knows it is not a free animal and it will not have settled for warmth and quiet.

This procedure should have been followed for several days. The best should have been raised with the child's exuberance being curbed and the result would have been vastly different. I assure you this sorry tale is not an isolated case history. This sort of treatment is the lot of untold thousands of dogs. In fact, the dog with a good

Familiar Bracken Not Unsightly, But Remains Unpopular Growth

By HENRIETTA K. BUTLER

BRACKEN might be called a weed when as a wild plant it invades pastures and outcrops. It is not exactly unsightly but it certainly is a nuisance.

This fern belongs to a large and important family of flowering plants whose daisy and lily-like flowers are the flowers of the woodlands. It is a native of the British Isles and is found in all parts of the country.

In the past, the bracken has been a pest to the farmer because of its habit of growing in the corners of the fields and in the ditches. It is a very hardy plant and it is not easy to get rid of.

Now, however, the bracken is becoming a pest to the city dweller. It is growing in the parks and in the gardens of the city. It is a very hardy plant and it is not easy to get rid of.

POOR MAN'S CARIBBEAN

By CECIL CLARK

YOU'VE heard of the sailor who quit seafaring, packed an oar on his shoulder so far inland that when the kids said "What's that he's carrying?" he knew that's where he'd settle.

Bill Fowler, a Vancouver machinist, gave a new switch to the story when he said goodbye to punching a time clock; he took his lathe to the seashore, dumped it in a shed and left it.

This is how it happened.

Bill, born in Hespeller, Ontario, of Scottish parentage, straightened up from his lame one afternoon four years ago with a faraway look in his eyes.

It could have been the cry of wild sea birds he heard, may be the whisper of the wind in the pines, or possibly just the clatter of pans in the kitchen of a milkmaid.

For Bill had been a poor man for a long time. He had been a poor man for a long time. He had been a poor man for a long time.

Rebuilding is now in progress at British Columbia. Here workers are laying the foundations for the new Haida Gwaii Highway, which will connect the islands to the mainland. The new road will be a major link in the transportation network of the province.

BLACKBIRDING IN SOUTH PACIFIC

By LAURENCE SEYMOUR

PART II

NEXT morning the hardest part of the job remained to be done. All the natives had gone ashore the previous night, and the headman had arranged to have the 28 boys who had enlisted down on the beach at daybreak. Until then, the payment for these men remained aboard.

A tricky business this of collecting the recruits and making payment offhand. The natives are excitable and distrustful, and many a ship has occurred, resulting in bloodshed.

As soon as day broke we put the whaleboats over and pulled inshore with the goods. All went well. Our boys were waiting for us the whole 28 of them, the goods were handed over and we pulled off to the schooner.

With the "blackbirds" safely aboard, four of us were told off into one of the boats to pull the agent and the recruiter to shore. Only the recruiter went ashore to see if he could pick up any more likely boys. The rest remained in the boat and we lay on our oars about 10 yards off shore, with rifles handy to act as a sort of covering party.

OUT JUMPED NATIVE

We watched the second mate make his way up to the village on his lookout for bargains. He had no more than half-way to the nearest hut when one of the boys in front of him jumped a native with a tomahawk in his hand.

He was stark naked but was painted from neck to toe with yellow and white stripes. His face in his hands had been picked out with dabs of paint. He looked like a dancing skull.

The second mate saw him then turned and ran for it.

It was not very far to the boat, 200 or 300 yards, but he was weighted down with boots and clothes and the native easily gained on him. I saw he would be overtaken and I asked the agent if I could shoot and kill him. The native or the second would be killed.

The agent was a poor sort of a man and ordered me to buy the rifle down. I would if I could but kept it ready to use for the agent or my agent when the second reached the shore and I. They don't go there so I jumped into the water to look for the boat, which we had pulled in.

STRUCK IN ANKLE

The native picked up dead about 20 yards away and as the recruiter scrambled on was the gunwale, let fly his tomahawk. It hit the recruiter in the ankle, almost putting his foot to the plank.

We gave way and pulled.

"How'd you like 'em, hard or soft boiled?"

land for the ship the recruiter something into the bottom of the boat.

We stopped for a minute to tie up the injured foot, which was bleeding badly. As we pulled off to the schooner. When we got on board we learned that the fellow who had attacked the second was not one of the local natives but one of a party that had come down from the North Cape looking for trouble. These North Cape natives are a particularly savage lot, a ways at war with the tribes nearest them. This party was out head hunting, and the chance of getting a white man's head was too much for them.

DECIDED TO MOVE

In view of what had happened, the old man decided it would be a waste of time to remain any longer in the neighborhood, and he determined to bear away for the New Hebrides.

The second mate's foot was bandaged properly and he was put into his bunk. The old man cursed frantically at the accident; he stomped about the deck swearing in Kanaka, Chinese and pidgin English. It was not so much in sympathy with the second as that now he would have to do his own recruiting, and that was a terrible prospect. It took for a good deal of nerve, and the seaplane's nerve was pretty well drowned by reason of the whisky and fatigue he had poured down on top of it.

As soon as the boat had been hoisted on board we have up anchor and warped out through the reef. It was blowing fresh and we started away to the SE not sorry to be quit of Bougainville.

We coasted down the length of the Solomon, keeping the land about 10 miles off. We passed Guadalcanal the next day. This is a big beautiful island and a place that the Solomonians used to visit. They don't go there so I jumped into the water to look for the boat, which we had pulled in.

The number of islands in these seas is amazing. They range from pieces the size of Ireland to some twice as big, and all of them are covered from the water up to the tops with vegetation. We passed more than 100 islands, or what the natives call "the islands." They looked up and down at the islands, and I discovered that a great many of them were not islands at all, but were reefs.

When we had left the Solomons astern, we ran through the Santa Cruz group, another trading ground for the Solomonians, and on the 15th day out came the island of Estatu.

This is the largest of the New Hebrides, and very much like the Solomons in appearance. We made for an anchorage on the SW coast. As soon as we got there business began again. The way of it was much the same as at Bougainville but the natives didn't strike me as being quite so wild as the Solomons.

They seemed a good deal shyer, too, although the headmen were ready enough to do business. We got a score or more boys there before getting our kiffick (small at night) and moving on to the next island, Malekula. I think it was

NEARLY FULL

All the way down the island we were picking our boys into a number of boxes and barrels, and gradually moving up our point of collection. By the time we had worked down to San Juan Island we were just about full up, and the skipper decided for home.

We had 21 natives under contract, not a bad haul for a day's work. And I don't suppose the rest of them had more than £100 in their pockets. The poor beggars didn't know much of the value of their own heads, and when the time was up there wasn't lot of old reputations the headmen were. They would almost give you a man for a mugger, and they had the best of the bargain.

(The following story was obtained from The Islander through the good offices of Victoria's Thermopylae Club, most of whose members are veterans of old sailing ship days. The author, living in England, sent it to Charles Tappin of the Thermopylae Club to add to that club's store of seafaring yarns. It should be explained that the conditions described in the story no longer pertain—"blackbirding" having been abolished by legislation in Australia early in this century.)

The men were "collected" were taken to Queensland and signed on a three-year contract for work on the sugar plantations. They were given board and wages, and at the end of the time sent back home.

I say "wages" but it was a very small sum, and the men were never paid more than £100 in their pockets. The poor beggars didn't know much of the value of their own heads, and when the time was up there wasn't much to take back with them, and in many cases they were left with nothing at all.

NEAR SLAVERY

They were not a job to be taken lightly, for the men were taken to Queensland and signed on a three-year contract for work on the sugar plantations. They were given board and wages, and at the end of the time sent back home.

With the recruits in safety aboard we set our two boats and sailed away for the passage home. We had a very successful voyage, and the men were all well and happy when we reached home.

TANGIBLE PROFITS

I returned to the ship as I had a good haul of boys, and the skipper was very pleased. The men were all well and happy when we reached home.

Under Two Flogs

Two naval vessels in the South Pacific actually sail under two flags each. They are patrolling the waters around the New Hebrides Archipelago, a Franco-British condominium. As lefts this role, the Romaine and the Don Quixote fly the French flag, and the Union Jack from twin masts.

As if further to insure parity, the two skippers converse in French. Captain Gurnell of the Romaine is a British, while Captain O'Brien of the Don Quixote is Irish. O'Brien speaks Gaelic and Gurnell's "Bretonnant" is Gaelic enough for them to understand each other.

WHEN Dame Flora MacLeod, of MacLeod, arrives on Vancouver Island this week she hopes to meet as many of her clansmen, and any others who wish to meet her, as she can, and a busy round of events has been arranged to afford her the opportunities.

Chief Flora's great ambition is to bring to Clatskanie, and others, stories of the clan and ancient customs. She aspires to bring together clansmen in groups and sometimes in numbers all over the world to hold a reunion of the clan.

But the MacLeods are not the only clan in the world. There are many others, and the MacLeods are not the only clan in the world. There are many others, and the MacLeods are not the only clan in the world.

"COME HOME"

"Will you come back again?" she asks her clansmen. She hopes to bring together clansmen in groups and sometimes in numbers all over the world to hold a reunion of the clan.

Saanich Drops Hall By-Law For This Year

Delay in completion of architects' plans for construction of a $500,000 municipal hall has forced Saanich to drop plans for a by-law vote on the project in the December elections, Reeve Joseph Casey said yesterday.

The proposed by-law was to provide for the construction of a new hall on the site of the old hall, which was destroyed by fire in 1953. The new hall would be a two-story building, 100 feet long and 40 feet wide, with a total floor area of 4,000 square feet. It would contain a council chamber, a committee room, a public hall, a kitchen, a bathroom, and a storage room. The estimated cost of the hall is $500,000.

Legislation Asked

The provincial government was asked yesterday to provide legislation to close a loophole in the B.C. Hours of Work Act which permits up to 88 working hours over two weeks without a day off.

L. T. Stiles, executive secretary of the Provincial Council of Carpenters, said his group would ask for a revision of the act at the annual meeting of the legislature. Some employers, including Royal Jubilee hospital, are abusing the act as now constituted, he said.

The council also feels that the maximum hours of work a week should be reduced from 40 to 34 hours.

John Manning was elected president of the Glenlyon Old Boys' Association at the annual meeting in Glenlyon school, Nov. 11.

Alan Wilson is vice-president; Hamish Simpson, secretary-treasurer; Ian Shaw, Ron Hughes, members of the executive; Allen Cliffe, past president.

Balm Before the Storm

Indian summer enjoyed by Victorians Thursday was warm enough to spark some spring-like feeling in the young hearts of 10-year-old Martin Taylor, 977 Humboldt, shown here affectionately hugging Karen Gillings, also 10, of 614 Niagara. The scene had changed abruptly by the next day when wind-whipped snow blanketed the well-worn lane, shelving romantic strolls for another year.

Coroner's Inquiry This Week

Central Saanich Berry Farmer Found Dead in Drainage Ditch

Body of Walter Hollaway, a 76-year-old Central Saanich berry farmer, was found in a drainage ditch a few yards from his home on busy V. & S. road Friday, several days after he died, apparently from a heart attack.

A coroner's inquiry will be held this week into the death of the elderly man, who was found by three relatives during the Remembrance Day snowstorm.

Newspapers picked up in his mailbox indicated that Mr. Hollaway died Monday of Tuesday. He was last seen by neighbors while cleaning a two-foot drain ditch Monday afternoon of the South African War.

Continuations of the drive a year ago.

In a recent letter to The Daily Colonist, Mr. Raymond suggested that letters containing return envelopes be sent to thousands of Victorians asking for $1 or more each to make the drive for $200,000 a success.

We are sure of at least $100,000 and the campaign appeal will do the rest, campaign manager R. M. Moore said yesterday. It is being made to include a book support the Community Chest.

Mount Tolmie residents have protested to Saanich council against a plan to put a parking lot and tea room on Mount Tolmie park.

"I imagine this is planned for tourists," said Mrs. E. L. Larkin, 2478 Mayfair, "but we find the park is used mostly for night parking."

Mrs. Larkin is one of 20 residents who have signed a petition to the council.

"We have had a lot of trouble from the parking lot and tea room," she said.

Plan to build the parking area and tea room has been put forward by the Victoria Saanich board, and passed committee.

A point park but as a commercial enterprise we don't want it."

Mrs. J. L. Andrews, who also lives at Mayfair, said "Things will get worse than ever if they build the parking lot and tea room. We have trouble already—especially at weekends."

Reeve Joseph Casey said: "I cannot comment because the petition has not yet been officially received by the council."

Rash of Island Fires Total $100,000 Loss

Damage reached almost $100,000 as fires, blamed directly on the record cold snap Friday and Saturday, destroyed a large building at Mill Bay and damaged homes in Sidney and Victoria.

A fourth fire, of unknown origin, destroyed a large amount of food and other ships stores in a section of an Island Tug and Barge Ltd. warehouse.

"We'll be open for business with a new service station on Monday," said H. A. Warner, owner of a $75,000 structure at the intersection of the Island highway and the Mill Bay cutoff road, levelled by flames yesterday.

Only part of his loss was insured. A lumber yard and a hardware store across the street also owned by Mr. Warner, were never in any danger.

After a fire, a fireman of a service station in the building, his wife and a 10-year-old son, their upstairs apartments in 11-degree weather while Karen Madsen and Elsie Pedersen worked in their coffee shop, which they were just about to open.

TANK OVERHEATED Mr. Warner said pipes froze during the night and the tank, a 100-gallon tank, exploded, setting off a fire that destroyed the building.

Miss Pedersen said she and Miss Madsen leased the coffee shop five months ago, less than three years after they came to Canada from Denmark. Penalties then, they saved the money by working as domestic servants.

"We are going to build up a business again," she said. "All during the winter passed by the neighbors want to give us money to help."

Loss was said to be "very considerable" at Island Tug and Barge, but firemen confined damage to a corner of a large shed and saved a large amount of valuable shipping equipment.

Fire departments in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Sidney also reported nine flames last night.

This was the second in a series of talks on the subject of fine silver. His talk was on Hallmarks of Silver and he traced their origin from the year 1000 to the present day. It was at that early date that the Goldsmiths' Co. with the authority of law, stamped its first hallmark on the leopards' head. This mark guaranteed that the work, but being assayed and the proper use of silver and copper used. Throughout the next 500 years, hallmarks increased and changed so that now they tell a complete story of each piece of silver; one knows the maker, the date of its having been made, the city it was made in, and, from 1794 to 1890 the reigning monarch of the time. Hallmarks were established to eliminate fraudulent practices and the same high standards set by these statutory hallmarks are in use today.

Barbecued Meats Ideal For Cold Evening Meal

Falls here, and it's a little chilly for cooking outdoors. But when it comes to the end of barbecue season, you'll find that barbecued meats are a favorite of the year round here are a few ideas for kitchen barbecues.

Pork and chicken barbecue just as well in the broiler as on a grill. Here's a sauce that goes well with both.

Combine 1/2 cup each tomato cup tarragon, vinegar, a tablespoon of grated onion, a tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce, 3 tablespoons of brown sugar, a teaspoon of chili powder and a small lump of butter.

Place chicken or chops in a shallow baking dish, brush with the sauce and broil as usual, brushing with sauce several times during the process.

If you like, you can marinate the pork chops for a few hours ahead of time in tarragon vinegar, with a bay leaf added. Then use that vinegar to make your sauce.

SPICED SPAREIRIS

Spareiries are a continually popular barbecue dish. Here's a sauce for them that's on the exotic side—sweet and hot, and containing among other ingredients, molasses and Tabasco sauce.

Crab Main Ingredient Of Many Good Dishes

PRINCESS PIE

This scrumptious deep crab meat pie is truly a palace le resistance. It's a delicious combination of tender, succulent crab meat, and sauce, vegetables, mushrooms, cheese, and topped with flaky, buttery crust. The whole pie and the filling can be prepared in a 10-inch pie pan. Cover with a layer of paper and refrigerate until time to pop into the oven. (Remember to remove the freezer paper before baking.)

Complete the menu with a citrus-flavored dessert, such as Citrus Lemon Snow, sugar cookies and iced coffee. Wouldn't it be wonderful fare for a buffet party?

PIE INGREDIENTS

Two cups Canadian canned Crab Meat, drained; 1 cup cheddar cheese, shredded; 1 cup chopped onion; 1 cup chopped green pepper; 1 cup chopped mushrooms; 1 cup cream of mushroom soup; 3 tablespoons mayonnaise; 1 cup grated cheddar cheese.

TOPPING
One cup sifted all-purpose flour; 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 3 tablespoons shortening; 1 1/2 cups milk or water.

Crack celery, green pepper and onion in very little water until tender. Drain well. Combine crab meat and cheddar cheese in a 2-quart casserole. Add cooked drained vegetables, mix soup, mayonnaise and cheese. Heat over hot water until cheese has melted. Pour over vegetables. Make topping as follows: sift dry ingredients in a sifter, then mix with water in a blender until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk or water all at once. Mix lightly.

Turn out on lightly floured board. Knead 8 times. Roll out into 10-inch circle. Place over cheese sauce. Make a steam slot in centre of topping. (It will add more liquid and make a softer dough which can be dropped from a teaspoon in mounds over the cheese. Place in hot oven 425° for 1 1/2 hours. Remove and serve. Freezing: Mix with dry ingredients.

When this casserole made to premiere at a recent luncheon, everyone asked for the recipe. It's a hearty, protein-rich main dish, casserole well suited to the "that something new and different" you need now that the cold weather season is with us again.

Samovars and Sand ...

Strange Requests for Things Russian

By IRVING R. LEVINE

MOSCOW—A correspondent in Moscow these days has more to do than simply gather news. He is also asked to gather a variety of things ranging from samovars to Siberian di To bask cats for friends and passing acquaintances.

The recent limited opening-up of the Soviet Union to Americans apparently has awakened a latent desire, at least among the people who write to this correspondent, for things Russian.

For instance, there was the letter from a gentleman in Chicago whom I had not heard from in five years.

"My reason for writing," he began with commendable candor, "is to ask you to send me a balalaika. Really, I learned how to play one several years ago and would like to own one."

My long-lost pen pal placed rather severe limitations on his order, writing that he would be glad to pay the costs if the instrument is in the $10 range.

Prices being what they are here in the Soviet Union, my musical friend is going to have to raise his offer or go without a balalaika. Much the same situation applies to samovars, those elaborate and decorative teakettles made in Russia. Rather reluctantly I assured several friends that I'd be pleased to pick up samovars for them. Now, it turns out you can't touch one for less than 400 rubles which is $100, a lot of money for a teapot.

Not all the requests are expensive ones. A friend who had Party and probably now No. 1 spent her childhood half a century ago in the Crimea asked me to get a bottle of the golden sand do show a great deal of that characterizes the Black Sea area. While travelling in yet they do not sign their names on blank sheets of paper for a bottle of the golden sand do show a great deal of that characterizes the Black Sea area. While travelling in yet they do not sign their names on blank sheets of paper for a bottle of the golden sand do show a great deal of that characterizes the Black Sea area.

But my favorite letter came from acquaintances in Connecticut. They wrote: "We would like to ask a favor of you. For about 10 years we have been trying to get a pair of cats that can be obtained only from Russia. The species is called Siberiana di Tobolsk. They are a very large furry cat and very domesticated."

Just how to go about obtaining these Soviet cats is not quite clear. There are no pet shops in Moscow. There is a zoo. And there are back alleys where perhaps even a domesticated Siberiana di Tobolsk cat might hang out on an evening.

Frenchman Asks Kinsey Why No Mention of 'Love'

PARIS—That indefatigable Parisian, the fabled French doctor, Alfred Kinsey, was a little at sea this week when he came up against the Gallic approach to the same subject. For two hours he addressed a Paris meeting of doctors and sociologists. Then he bravely took the plunge and invited questions.

Asked why the word love never used in the 1,600 pages of your two books? — "Thus, in a single sentence, the French doctor summed up all the differences between American and French on a matter of some importance."

What is "sexual behavior" to the scientific, analytical mind of Dr. Kinsey is less simple to the French.

Dr. Kinsey smiled apprehensively for a few seconds. Then he replied: "Love is like music. I recognize that there is an art of love, but I have only studied the scientific aspect."

A customs official had something of the same idea when he passed Dr. Kinsey's luggage on his arrival. As the doctor moved on the official grunted, "Why does he come here to talk to us about something on which we are already world famous artists?"

THE LITTLE ABBE IS RICK
Friends close to him are worried about the health of the little bearded Abbe Pierre, head of the French branch of the Red Cross. Though only 42, his eyesight is failing, his deaf in one ear and years of roughing it in the resistance movement and in the worst of the Paris have undermined his strength.

But his conscience prickling reminds him to go to the homes for the thousands of persons who had no shelter except the Seine bridges, and the slanders and humiliations of the house goes from strength to strength.

Money has flooded in and government departments are actually doing something instead of passing the buck to each other. The abbe's Emmanuel movement—named after the Biblical village where hope was reborn—is now installed in a fine six-story building in the heart of Paris.

Indian Woman Prefers Sari To All Paris Fashions

OTTAWA (CP)—Pilot Maneckji is not very impressed with Paris fashions.

"In India we have our sari and we drape it as we like," she said. "Don't you think that's more original?"

Pilot she is Mme. M. J. B. Maneckji, wife of Bombay's state commandant-general of home defence—was discussing the couple's recent three-day visit to Canada in connection with Mr. Maneckji's civil defence interests.

She joined her husband in the United States only a couple of weeks before coming to Canada. While he was visiting Germany, the United Kingdom and the U.S., she and other members of the family were visiting various European countries.

Mme. Maneckji, dark-haired and petite with a delicate wit, was asked whether she did any shopping during her stay in Paris.

"That's when the truth about her feelings on Paris fashions came out. We Indian women," she said good-humoredly, "are not ruled by Jacques Fath or Christian Dior."

Inter-Union Strife Continues

By BILL MAVOR

Merger of the CCL and TLC and the question of whether automation will soon require a 30-hour week appear now as the possible highlight issues of the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Labor (CFL).

To be held Saturday and Sunday at Vancouver, merger of the national and provincial bodies of the Canadian Congress of Labor and Trades and Labor Congress may mark a high point.

In B.C. at present there are two major struggles between CCL and TLC unions. One is the strike problem of the TLC powerhouse engineers idling thousands of CCL workers on the island and mainland.

WOOLING STRIKERS

The IWA, which claims the TLC union obtained many powerhouse members by organizing the men when the IWA was on strike, is now busily wooing the strikers into the CCL ranks.

The strike does not appear close to any solution although talks might be expected soon between IWA and the operating engineers to settle the dispute between the two unions.

There is no expectation for early resumption of settlement talks between the striking TLC union and employer mills.

The second inter-union struggle is at Kitimat where reports yesterday said the jurisdiction battle will be stepped up for control of 1,200 workers.

Charles Millard, Canadian head of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), said he had been unable to get consent of the Aluminum Workers Council (AFL-TLC) to a secret ballot election determining which union should hold power with smelter workers.

LOVER GOES

He and agreement had been reached in the United States.

between the two unions for the convention and prepare resolutions. Victoria Labor Council will name its representatives and resolutions Wednesday night.

"Therefore, the steelworkers will fulfil its obligation to stay in Kitimat," he said.

The 10-union aluminum council has represented smelter workers for more than a year. The steelworkers have been rebuffed by the province's Labor Relations Board in efforts to force a representation vote.

The 30-hour work week question will be raised by Vancouver Labor Council, which is sending to the convention a recommendation for such hours.

Opposition was expressed within the council last week when it was felt living standards should be improved elsewhere in the world before attempts are made here to obtain a 30-hour week.

Steelworkers' spokesman, Pen Baskin, favored the shortened week, noting the coming of automation.

ONE JOB, ONE MAN

Victoria IWA member Edman Haw, said he personally believes the 40-hour work week should be enforced before attempts to reduce hours of work.

"Also, one job only for one person," he said. Victoria Local 1-118, IWA, meets today to elect its delegates to the work in their next provincial convention in 1957.

LORDS' RULING

The House of Lords in Britain, sitting as the highest court of appeal, has ruled a person is entitled to claim damages from his union.

It has granted the claim of Mrs. Mary Benson, 58, who sought permission to sue the Musicians' Union for expelling her late husband and thus depriving him of his livelihood, British United Press reports.

A new regulation made by the Labor Relations Board, establishing the procedure for unions to change their names, if necessary on merger of the TLC and CCL, was announced last week by Labor Minister Lyle Wicks.

Following receipt of the petition in the proper form, the board is required only to satisfy itself that the employers in the unit to which the change is related desire the change.

The planning has not yet been given to a by-law altering the required floor area in blocks district buildings from 1,000 to 200 square feet and rezoning the Cherry Brook hotel property as "special district" so that it can have a public dining room. A public hearing on change will be held at the next council meeting Nov. 24.

LONDON (Reuters) - A mother and child who got experts' thumbs-up for a desperate bid to save a life, have been hailed as heroes for Christmas. The 11-year-old boy, who had a life-threatening condition, was found lying with a mouse on his chest, which wiggled and writhed as he wound up.

TORONTO (CP) — Watch your the extent of drunkenness was shown in a Canadian study of you may want up a drunkard.

Surgeon-Gen. Marvyn Wellman of the RCN hospital, Esquimalt, B.C., says many coming down to the group because of their drinking habits.

Dr. Wellman writes: During adolescence, these men had been thrust into social groups in which drinking regularly and to excess was the norm.

He studied the lives of 28 excessive drinkers, all under the age of 35, from March, 1952, to March, 1954. Two men, he found, overdrank because of severe head injuries.

Lightfoot To Run in Saanich

Walter Thomas Lightfoot, an employee of the work department at HMC Dockyard, announced yesterday that he will be a candidate for Saanich police commission in the December elections.

Other candidates for the single police commission seat are G. Stanley Eden who is seeking reelection at the expiration of his two-year term as commissioner, and Lionel Lightfoot.

Mr. Lightfoot said the main plank in his platform will be to restore a full measure of promotion by seniority in the Saanich force.

"In the past, junior members of the force have been promoted over the heads of senior officers," he said. "If I am elected, I shall do all I can to bring back the seniority system and revive police morale which at present seems to be low."

"We are sadly in need of a more police," Mr. Lightfoot said. "Saanich is not getting about it properly. Police service because the force is short-handed."

English Opera's Golden Age May Start in Covent Garden

By RICHARD L. THOMAS
Colonist London Correspondent

The Royal Opera House at Covent Garden has been a fairly accurate mirror reflecting the artistic state of the nation. It has seen the days when it performed a largely social function where distinguished singers are the servants of the artistic whole. One suspects that he more discriminating values great names.

If the Otello, conducted by Kubelik, and the Rosenkavalier conducted by Kempe, are samples of things to come we may well be at the beginning of a new golden age for opera in England.

Significant too is that as opera audiences have grown—according to the Arts Council they number 100 for every one of 25 years ago—they have become whole. One suspects that he more discriminating values great names.

The days when opera was the thing to "be done" and endured. It has seen great occasions of state and triumphal performances—but at no time has it been nearer to the heart of the people, at least as an opera house.

The upward surge of the modern opera began after the war. Some say it was acquired through broadcasting, through camp concerts by famous singers, and orchestras, and some through the practical experience of opera in Italy and Germany.

Whatever the reason there was an appreciable ready-made opera audience largely of people who had not regarded opera as recreation, amusement or mental stimulation.

BETTER CLIMATE
Covent Garden started after the war with a political climate which made it possible for the treasury to regard opera and the arts as a projection of education and offer substantial financial aid, and a ready-made audience anxious to support the finished product.

It was possible to contemplate forward planning without checking box-office takings. It began what may well develop into the golden age of British opera.

There were mistakes and misadventures. The two greatest British opera authorities, Albert Coates and Thomas Beecham, were passed over with indifference for a prophet in his own country.

Broken-hearted, Albert Coates went to South Africa where he died. Hard-hearted Thomas Beecham stayed with us and had a very worthwhile thing to say about the administration of Covent Garden and has lived to give us some golden performances in the house he knew so well.

WITHOUT A DIRECTOR
Came the time when Covent Garden was for years without a musical director, rather barren years in the march to the golden age, except for some magnetic individual performances, inspired by the magic of Beecham, Kempe, Barbirolli and such distinguished visitors.

Fortunately little has survived though we are assured by some that these unappreciated plants will bloom again when future generations have discovered something known only to the few today.

Covent Garden opened its new season in October with a new musical director, Rafael Kubelik, son of the famous violinist, who has already made a profound impact. It started courageously when Tito Gobbi missed some rehearsals for his role of Iago in Verdi's Otello.

110 PERFORMANCES
Mr. Gobbi thought that 110 performances of the role entitled him to some dispensation. Mr. Kubelik did not doubt Mr. Gobbi's talents but pointed out that adequate rehearsal was essential for an integrated performance.

Mr. Kubelik brought to Covent Garden in one stroke something which it has lacked—an authority based on art.

Mr. Kubelik has let it be known that he intends Covent Garden to be a home of grand opera in English, and a place

Tug Nears Stricken Freighter

A line from the Victoria-based tug Sudbury may be secured early Friday morning to the crippled Greek freighter Make-donia, which has been drifting powerless in a storm-tossed north Pacific for 12 days.

A converted corvette owned by Island Tug and Barge, the Sudbury was an estimated 300 miles from the 7,200-ton freighter which was bound for Vancouver from Japan when a broken shaft stopped her on Oct. 30.

Sudbury, piloted by Capt. Harley Bingham, was dispatched the next day to the rescue. The salvage tow, expected to take at least 20 days to Vancouver, will be one of the longest of its kind on record.

Sun Rays Cool New Refrigerator

MONT-LOUIS, France (NANA)—A sun-powered refrigerator has been built at France's solar energy laboratory at Mont-Louis, in the French Pyrenees, and is expected to provide widespread benefits to those living in regions without electricity.

The solar energy is obtained by means of a half-cylindrical system of mirrors, whose outer surface does not surpass about 25 square feet.

Civic Government Typifies Democracy

Municipal government is not the emblem of antiquity or decadence—but is rather the essence of grassroots democracy. Cal Bay Reeve Fred Norris last night told a handful of people who came to hear a discussion on municipal amalgamation at Britannia Legion hall.

Lawyer Forrest L. Shaw said that with a 66 per cent population growth anticipated for the area in the next 20 years, and increasing leisure hours of the citizens, amalgamation is necessary for large-scale plans to accommodate this influx and provide recreational facilities.

"When so many people live in close proximity there is need for single control," he said. With metropolitan government "we'd all be better off."

Mr. Norris said, "After the depression, everyone thought that size meant efficiency. But they were wrong. Since the last war, the trend has been to decentralize."

He said that the area would lose $150,000 a year in municipal grants if amalgamation went into effect.

"Before anyone votes for amalgamation they should ask themselves whether they want the same service at lower cost, or better service for the same cost, or improvement regardless of the cost," he said.

Mr. Norris pointed out that each municipality works closely with the other now but still maintains individual policy that permits residents to move to where the policy pleases them.

Vultures Pin-Point Child Victims

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—Wheeling vultures led a search party through the Masaka swamps of Uganda to the scattered remains of two African girls sacrificed during witchcraft rites, the Uganda government disclosed Saturday.

The victims, aged 6 and 3, disappeared after a wedding feast a fortnight ago. Police said the discovery revealed "a very extensive black magic practice in the district."

Earrings Tell Tales In School

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Julie Hale, a Bronx public school teacher, looked startled when 14-year-old Lydia Morales appeared in her classroom wearing "handsome" diamond earrings.

Mrs. Hale's home had been robbed last month of $800 in jewelry. Among the gems was $300 pair of earrings.

On closer inspection the earrings worn by the pupil turned out to belong to the teacher, police said.

In court Friday, Lydia's mother, Mrs. Bertha Morales, was arraigned on a charge of criminally receiving stolen property.

Mrs. Morales said she bought the earrings for $20 from a man she did not know, and gave them to the girl to wear to school.

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Moscow's state-run television centre will begin broadcasting over a second channel by the end of next year. But viewers will not see color television until 1958.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said a television centre at Alma-Ata, capital of the Kazakh Soviet Republic, near the Chinese border, should be ready by 1957. The latest city reported to have started operating a television station is Vladivostok, on the Soviet Pacific coast.

Quebec Disaster

Slide Kills Three, Evacuates 2,000

NICOLET, Que. (CP)—A huge landslide on the Nicolet river Saturday claimed the lives of at least three persons, forced the evacuation of some 2,000 men, women and children from their Nicolet homes and caused damage estimated at more than $5,000,000.

There was danger of further landslides and Chief Edouard Beaulac of the Nicolet police department declared a state of emergency.

A huge mass of earth that formed part of a high bank of the river, slid suddenly shortly before noon, taking with it the archbishop's palace, an academy, two homes and other property.

The 150-year-old St. Jean Baptiste cathedral, adjacent to the archbishop's palace, was still standing but at a dangerous angle and to this town of 5,000 within a year. Roman Catholic church officials it suffered heavily in a fire some said it could never be occupied months ago.

So far the bodies of a six-month-old boy, a 60-year-old woman and a member of a religious order have been recovered. It was feared the slide also claimed the lives of several occupants of an automobile.

Search for the possible victims was halted because of the danger to searchers of the earth shifting again and of fallen electric wires.

At least six persons were taken to hospital suffering from various injuries, none believed severe, and cathedral, adjacent to the archbishop's palace, was still standing but at a dangerous angle and to this town of 5,000 within a year. Roman Catholic church officials it suffered heavily in a fire some said it could never be occupied months ago.

Iron Cross Displayed

New German Army Born Without Fanfare

BONN, Germany (UP)—West Germany's new army was born yesterday in a shabby garage behind the defence ministry.

Defence Minister Theodor Blank administered an oath of loyalty to the first 101 men of what is to become a 500,000-man Streitkräfte—fighting force.

Two lieutenant-generals, 93 lieutenant-colonels, majors and lieutenants, one sergeant-major and five master sergeants gave the pledge.

Only a few had time to get themselves fitted with the mouse-grey uniform of the new army. They were put prominently in front of the somewhat disorderly ranks.

Bunting and a huge Iron Cross, symbol of old-fashioned German militarism, constituted the only decorations for the ceremony, which took place the day after her enemies in two great wars paid annual respects to their fallen soldiers.

Lt-Generals Adolf Heusinger and Hans Speidel were the senior officers.

Defence Minister Blank, in a brief speech, expressed the emphasis which the government is putting on making the army a democratic one.

City Fishboat Missing After Storm

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two fish boats have been reported missing in B.C. coastal waters as an aftermath of gales that lashed the area Thursday and Friday.

An RCAF Canso aircraft is searching for the fishboat Kenneth, which left Victoria Wednesday to fish off Sechart in the Georgia Strait, and another boat reported to have been burned in Howe Sound, near Williams landing, Friday night.

It is not known how many were aboard the two craft.

City Yacht Reaches Hawaii After 22 Days on Pacific

The Victoria yacht Tzu Hang has reached Hawaii from San Francisco in 25 days, four days faster than a recent passage by another local boat.

Mrs. C. H. King, of Victoria, received a cable Wednesday night from her daughter, Mrs. Vivian Sykes, one of the crew of the 42-foot ketch.

"My daughter said they had reached Hilo after only 25 days," said Mrs. King last night.

Victoria Hardest Hit Of All Island Centres

Temperature records only a day old were expected to topple today as the surprise cold snap which brought four inches of snow to Victoria Friday showed no signs of coming to an end.

The weather office, still totting up records set by the low temperature of 12.5 degrees at 7 a.m. yesterday, looked for a minimum of 12 degrees or less this morning and a maximum of only 20 later in the day.

Single chance for a break in the freeze was the slim possibility that a low-pressure area from the Gulf of Alaska would cross the southern Island to-night or tomorrow. At best, weatherman William Mackie predicted only "a slight moderation."

Victoria appeared to be hardest hit of all Island centres, with only a few snow flurries reported north of Nanaimo. Winds which reached 75 miles an hour in Sidney were called the "worst in 20 years."

Winds Vicious

Worst damage was a $75,000 fire at Mill Bay. Winds at Sidney caused destruction of the $7,500 launch Silhouette, owned by an unidentified Victoria man, a 36-foot gillnetter owned by Indians and a small pleasure craft owned by Robert MacDonald of Victoria.

A change in circulation of air high above B.C. brought the snow and cold to Victoria 10 hours early, the weatherman said. "We're not making any excuses, it just got here early."

Snow pellets fell at 1 a.m. Still 32 degrees at 9.30 a.m. It fell to 24 by 1.30 p.m., then slid one degree an hour until it reached 15 at 9.30 p.m. Reading dropped slowly to 12.5 between 4.30 and 7 a.m. yesterday, and never got above 20 all day.

Unofficial readings by Greater Victoria residents in different areas placed temperatures even lower than those recorded by weather office instruments.

A low of two degrees was reported yesterday at Prospect Lake and eight at Happy Valley.

Skating Dangerous

Fred Graham, 10, 1246 Atkins, escaped with minor injuries when his sled finished a run down St. Stephen road to collide with a car police said was driven by Cecil Chaffield, 3058 Lansdowne.

Police did not clear any streets for sleighing, and reported that ice-covered areas such as Panama flats and Portage Inlet were too dangerous for skating.

Mrs. Ellenor McGavin, 825 Monterey, and A. R. Davidson, 2545 Killarney, received cuts and bruises when a car police said the woman was driving struck a pole and went through a fence at Gorge and Tillamook.

Herbert Norris, 72, 737 Vancouver, suffered some frozen fingers and a dislocated left shoulder when he fell in Pioneer Square. Mrs. J. S. Adams broke an ankle in a fall on icy sidewalk near her home at 2510 Richmond.

All police forces were kept hopping by minor accidents. Motorists got some breaks — Boy Scouts pushed stalled cars on the Patricia Bay highway in the midst of the snow storm.

Anti-freeze and fuel were still in good supply despite panic buying by thousands of Victorians.

Half of the 200 service stations in the area were open, although only 12 normally operate on holidays, selling anti-freeze. Motorists lined up at many places and one service station had 500 customers, between 7.30 a.m. Friday and 12 a.m. yesterday.

Wants Compensation ...

Nelson Expects England To Do Her Duty

LONDON (NANA) — Earl Nelson, 65-year-old great-grandnephew of Lord Nelson, Britain's greatest naval hero, will claim $300,000 compensation from the British Government for the loss of the family's $15,000-a-year perpetual state pension.

"I am not interested in the money," Lord Nelson declared in an interview. "I want to wipe out the slur that was cast on my family by the arbitrary withdrawal of the pension."

"If the government can pay compensation to an industry when it is nationalized, they can equally pay compensation to a national hero when his family pension is withdrawn."

"I feel the decision to end the pension was a spiteful gesture by men who felt no pride in our heroic heritage."

Lord Nelson said he had prepared a full memorandum on the subject. "The Duke of Wellington's heirs received more than $300,000 when his pension was ended," he pointed out. "I know I will have substantial support in parliament if I enter a private bill to right the injustice."

"The original act granting the pension forever laid it down that the grant could not be varied by any monarch or his ministers."

Faces Crisis

EDUARDO LONARDI

Space Lures Prince

LONDON (CP)—Prince Charles, who celebrates his seventh birthday Monday, has decided to be a spaceman when he grows up.

Palace circles said the heir to the British throne gave first place to a spaceman's suit on his birthday list of requests which he handed to the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh last week.

A cricket set was mentioned and some Donald Duck movies but it was obvious from the giant letters in which "space-man's suit" was spelled out that it was a fling into outer space which tempts young Charles most.

Government Tottering

Dissension Splits Anti-Peron Group

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Argentine government of provisional President Eduardo Lonardi appeared to be on the brink of failure early Sunday.

A split among the men who threw out the Peron dictatorship less than two months ago led to a government crisis and emergency conferences among military leaders.

President Lonardi was reported at the 1st infantry regiment headquarters but his status was unclear.

Rear Adm. Isaac Rojas, a hero of the rebellion against the ousted President Juan D. Peron, scurried between civil and military conferences as tension increased overnight.

Some veteran political observers said Lonardi had a chance of surviving the crisis and warned not to count him out too early.

A consultative junta was reported to have drafted an ultimatum giving Lonardi the choice of "democratizing" the government with basic changes in key positions or resigning.

Lonardi's second Cabinet shuffle in two days—dropping attorney Eduardo Basso as minister of interior and justice—was reported to have sparked a string of resignations in the Cabinet, the Supreme Court and many lower courts Saturday.

Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu, army's chief of staff, appeared as a rising figure in talks about a new government. A square-jawed career officer of 52, Aramburu sped from conferences at the big army base of Campo de Mayo to Government House on an urgent mission. ferred with the nation's top political leaders at a secret meeting in the Congress building. It was reported unofficially that there was strong consideration of a proposal to name a triumvirate to rule.

Top candidates mentioned for such a body were Rojas, Aramburu and the air minister, Vice-Commodore Ramon Amado Abraham.

Brazil Calm Returns

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil returned to normal Saturday after a swift and efficient bloodless revolt—staged to prevent a revolution.

All opposition—and the grim threat of civil war among the armed forces—collapsed in the face of determined action by supporters of law and order led by Gen. Henrique Teixeira Lott. There had been no fighting.

The man Gen. Lott installed as temporary president in a pre-dawn coup Friday, Nereu Ramos, appeared secure in office and an air of calm legality clothed the whole coup. The new government took a firm grip with the backing of the army's chief of staff, appeared as a rising figure in talks about a new government. Khrushchev Says:

London in Range Of New Red Plane

MOSCOW (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev boasted today that the Soviet Union's twin-jet medium bomber has a 3,000-mile range, which he said is enough to reach London, northern Europe, North Africa and Turkey.

This was the first time that the Soviet Communist party secretary had ever publicly discussed any technical aspect of a Soviet aircraft.

He told reporters that Russia has also developed a jet airliner modified from this bomber.
